

Supreme Court Ruling On Alleged Saboteurs Likely at Noon Today

Biddle and Royall Complete Final Arguments in Case of Germans Landed by Submarines

By RICHARD L. TURNER

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP)—The Supreme Court pondered the appeal of the alleged Nazi saboteurs for the protection of the civil courts tonight, with indications that it would announce its decision to issue or withhold a writ of Habeas Corpus at noon tomorrow.

Late today, it completed the hearing of oral arguments, with Attorney General Biddle telling the court, in terms of utmost emphasis, that it was without power to interfere with or review any wartime action taken by the president in his capacity as commander-in-chief of the armed forces.

Nazis Without Rights

The president, he argued, had full authority to order that the German prisoners be tried by a military commission. As enemies, he said, they were without right to the safeguards established for the civil liberties of loyal citizens.

This view was flatly denied by Colonel Kenneth Royall, one of several army lawyers appointed to serve as counsel for the defense. Citizens, aliens and enemies alike, he argued, have the privilege of recourse to the courts.

Most of the court's day was spent in hearing Biddle complete the case for the government and receiving rebuttal arguments from Royall. The latter, in easygoing but positive fashion, complained that an insufficient portion of the evidence taken by the military commission had been placed before the court.

Mistreated in Germany

Actually, he said, the evidence tended to substantiate the contention of the men that they were not saboteurs, but agreed to come to this country in that role, purely as a method of escaping from Nazi oppression. One of them, he added, had received "terrible" mistreatment in Germany.

During the day, as a means of perfecting the legal procedure necessary to place the case before the Supreme Court, the petitioners entered an appeal in the District of Columbia court of Appeals. Previously, the case had been carried directly from the district court to the Supreme Court. Members of the latter had objected that it was unusual to ignore the court of appeals.

After adjourning today until noon tomorrow, the members of the high bench were immediately into conference, and the presumption about the court building was that they entered at once into the process of reaching their decisions.

They had two questions to decide:

Two Questions to Decide

First, whether constitutionality they have jurisdiction over the president's wartime actions and the activities of a military court.

Second, if they have jurisdiction, are they justified in issuing the writ of Habeas Corpus requested by the prisoners?

Should the answer to the first question be in the negative, the case would end there and there would be no necessity for considering the second.

Ickes and OPA Official Clash Over Rationing

Coordinator Says Joel Dean Is No Expert on Gasoline

By FRANCIS M. LE MAY

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP)—Emphatic opposition to nation-wide gasoline rationing at this time, as a measure designed to increase petroleum deliveries to the east, was voiced today by Petroleum Coordinator Harold L. Ickes.

As to whether universal gasoline rationing would be needed to conserve rubber, he said this question was not within his jurisdiction. Ickes told his press conference that supplies of fuel oil along the Atlantic seaboard had become so critical that many of the 1,250,000 householders using it for heating may have to set their thermostats at sixty-five degrees or lower next winter and turn off radiators in spare rooms.

May Get Less Gas

He hinted that it might be necessary to cut gasoline consumption further in the east, so that available transportation could be used to build up fuel oil stocks against next winter's needs.

As to nation-wide rationing, Ickes declared "this won't help the east now." He took sharp issue with such a program which Joel Dean, rationing executive of the Office of Price Administration, said he and OPA Chief Henderson had endorsed and forwarded to President Roosevelt.

Dean contended that universal rationing would release rail tank cars and tank trucks from other areas to build up eastern stocks. "We're taking all the tank cars from the rest of the country that the railroads can haul," Ickes said. "We'll take more as we can use them. It might be possible that rationing will be needed in some other areas at some future date due to transportation shortages, but that isn't the case now."

Turning to Dean's discussion of Universal rationing, he commented:

"I don't take anything out of OPA as authoritative except when Mr. Henderson speaks. Every little bureau chief down the line sometimes thinks he is sitting in the driver's seat, but (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Taft and Byrd Offer Plans To Avoid Inflation

Republican and Democrat Suggest Divergent Programs

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP)—A Virginia Democrat and an Ohio Republican today offered the Senate divergent plans to avoid inflation. Senator Byrd (D-Va) called for over-all control of prices, including wages—"the largest single element of cost."

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) presented a five-point program which he said was based on "a sound fiscal policy," adding "I don't think it is necessary to fix all the prices in the country."

Byrd said "the fight against inflation has reached a critical stage." Taft said he thought "the immediate danger of inflation has been exaggerated."

Taft Not Alarmed

In fact, the Ohioan declared "Department of Labor statistics show that the index of the cost of living has declined eight percent compared with costs in 1925."

"True, there has been an increase of fifteen percent in the last two years, but this rate of increase would not be alarming if it were not accelerating," Taft said.

Byrd expressed his firm opposition to government subsidies as a substitute for all-out price control. "Subsidies would cost billions of dollars and would encourage waste and inefficiency in private business," the Virginian asserted.

Taft said that in financing the war, as much money should be raised by taxes as can be raised without creating unnecessary hardships and interfering with the war program.

First Step in Program

As the first step in his program, he suggested that the treasury concentrate its bond sales to individuals and corporations, rather than to banks. Selling twenty-five to thirty billion dollars worth of bonds to commercial banks, he said, would create that much additional purchasing power "out of thin air." That extra power, he declared, would doom established price ceilings.

Other points in Taft's program: Revise the farm price floor to 100 percent of parity. (Parity is a level calculated to give farmers purchasing power equivalent to that in a favorable past period, in most cases 1909-14).

Adopt a bill by Senator Ball (R-Minn) to give the War Labor Board control of wages and salaries, with a provision that the board should not increase wages more than provided in the recent little steel decision.

Create an over-all commodity control board, with administrators for separate commodities, such as food, oil, steel and rubber.

"Gradually adapt the price control measures to the stabilization theory instead of ceiling theory, and eliminate price fixing on all minor items which have no substantial effect on the cost of living."

2,000 Workers Reported Needed At Hagerstown

Employment Service Will Seek Them from Miles Around

HAGERSTOWN, Md., July 30 (AP)—In a move to obtain 2,000 workers needed in local defense industries by September 1, the local United States employment service office has begun to send interviewers to all towns and cities within a radius of 100 miles in search of applicants.

Termining the Hagerstown labor situation "acute," Brewer L. Stouffer, manager of the employment office, said that if interviewing applicants within the 100 miles radius did not produce results, the office was prepared to go as far as 300 miles to bring workers here.

Needs Steady Flow

Besides the 2,000 workers needed within the next month, Stouffer said a steady flow of workers must be maintained to take care of the turnover and replace men absorbed by the draft.

He especially urged women over eighteen to register.

Group interviews have been started in Westminster, Gettysburg, Chambersburg, Cumberland, Martinsburg, Frederick, Winchester and Hyattsville.

Lists Job Openings

Among immediate job openings the office listed: sheet metal workers, stock chasers, clerks, sweepers, foundry workers, machinists, stenographers, typists, freight handlers and freight checkers.

Such an influx of workers would probably quickly absorb all available rooms, apartments and houses, the office said, adding that the room registry service of the Chamber of Commerce was expected to supply all single workers with quarters without great difficulty.

Aroff Pictured As Faithful to U. S. Navy Code

Lieutenant Commander Never Unfaithful, Two Witnesses Say

SAN FRANCISCO, July 30 (AP)—Lieut. Commander Maurice N. Aroff was pictured by two witnesses at his court martial today as a man who revered the navy and who never has been unfaithful to its code.

The testimony in defense of the plump, dark-haired officer accused of scandalous conduct was given by Ensigns Irving Cummings, Jr., and Michael Levee, Jr., from whom, the navy charges, Aroff solicited gifts for helping them get their commissions.

"Commander Aroff," said Levee, "looked upon the navy as an officer as I looked upon my mother as a civilian."

Made Gift to Officers

Cummings, a former screen story writer, in a voluntary statement to the six officers who compose the court, said he wanted to give something to Aroff because he was "impressive to me," and because he had said:

"This navy is the greatest thing in the world."

Cummings did not hesitate to acknowledge that he gave Aroff a set of gold cuff links, but he denied the presentation was made on April 4, the day he went on active duty. Instead, he said, it was the previous day. Navy regulations prohibit an officer from making a gift to another officer of higher rank.

Other Gifts Explained

Both Cummings and Ensign Lawrence Stromberg, from whom Aroff also is accused of accepting a token of appreciation, declared the gifts have since been returned.

Stromberg's present also was a set of cuff links. He said his father was so elated over his son's prospective commission that he selected a pair of cuff links and studs from his Los Angeles jewelry store.

Like Patricia E. Bouchard, blonde Stanford University student who testified yesterday, young Levee said the matter of gifts for Aroff originated while they were celebrating the new commissions.

Levee, Cummings, Miss Bouchard and Aroff were in the latter's hotel room on April 1, Levee said, "kidding around in a joyful manner about being commissioned. Commander Aroff suggested to me that I purchase an identification bracelet, but it was all done in a joking and lighthearted manner."

Japs May Hold Pribilof Islands

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP)—Delegate Dimond of Alaska said today "there is some slight circumstantial evidence" that the Japanese have occupied the Pribilof Islands about 250 miles northwest of Dutch Harbor.

"I have had several reports to that effect," Dimond said. "Two of them came from men who came into my office and said that from what they had heard in Alaska 'the Japs have the Pribilofs.'"

Dimond said "it is hardly conceivable that we would sit by and let them take the islands unless we are lacking power."

Press Photographer Describes Leap From Plane after Crash in Mid-Air

(Editor's note: From his bed in an army hospital, Frank Filan, 37, veteran Associated Press photographer of Los Angeles, told this story today to AP writer Robert Myers of his miraculous escape from an army bombardment training plane involved in a mid-air accident. Two other occupants of the plane—Sgt. Pilot Rodney M. Grim, 20, Opheim, Mont., and Clarence L. Block, 29, civilian photographer, were killed.)

By FRANK FILAN

VICTORVILLE, Calif., July 30 (AP)—I am a very lucky guy.

I half-dived, half-fell from a spinning plane last night over an army bombing range near here, dropped thousands of feet before regaining consciousness sufficiently to pull my parachute ripcord, then floated to the desert floor under the big silk chute which is probably the best friend I'll ever have.

Had I not been lucky enough to get out of the twisting spin as it spiraled down, I too would have been carried by my death with Block and Pilot Grim.

With a party of Los Angeles newspapermen, I have been touring west coast army flying fields for the past ten days, learning first hand the steps it takes to train an army pilot.

High Altitude Flight

We took off about dark last night on what the army described as a local routine flight. It was listed in the itinerary we were given as accompanying "high altitude record mission."

I don't know how high we were. Pretty high, I guess. Other planes, with the other newspapermen aboard, also were in the air. I was

This is a rare war photograph, indeed, for it shows Italian troops not only in action but actually attacking. The picture, made before the fall of Tobruk, shows an Italian tank-supported column advancing. The men are scattering as a huge shell explodes nearby. You guessed it—the British beat off the attack with heavy losses to the Italian forces. Then German Gen. Erwin Rommel's crack Afrika Korps attacked, breached the defenses and Tobruk fell.

British Fighter Offensives Keep Germans on Edge

RAF Bombs Saarbruecken in Reich and Other Cities

By DREW MIDDLETON

LONDON, July 30 (AP)—British fighter offensives, timed to keep up an almost continual racket of bomb blasts and gunfire, swept the French coast from near the Belgian border on the east to near the tip of Brittany on the west early tonight following another RAF heavy bomber blow, this time against Saarbruecken in the Reich. Thirteen British planes were lost in the series of dusk offensives in which Spitfires scored direct hits on hangars and dispersal huts on an airfield in the St. Omer area, set fire to a tanker off the coast and damaged a motor vessel.

Nazis Lose 7 Planes

Seven of Germany's speedy, high climbing new Focke-Wulf 190 fighter planes were shot down.

A warning "bombers' moon" lighted the way to strong bomber forces which swept over the thickly built coal and steel center of Saarbruecken Wednesday night when great fires and blasts visible seventy-five miles away were set off.

This continued hammering by strong forces of bombers against the centers of German industry of which the attack against Saarbruecken was the seventh in ten nights, it was disclosed meanwhile by informed air sources, is only one of the ways in which the air war is being carried to Germany.

ALL-AMERICAN FIGHTER UNITS TUNING UP FOR BIG WAR ROLE

By NOLAND NORGAARD

A UNITED STATES ARMY FIGHTER BASE IN BRITAIN, July 30 (AP)—The first all-American fighter units in Britain—fast, heavily-armed pursuit planes manned by United States army air force pilots—are tuning up for a big role in the Allied air offensive against German-occupied Europe.

Dozens of these fighters, which the pilots are confident are better than anything the Germans have yet put into the air, are swarming over this first United States fighter command base in Britain, and more are arriving.

The pilots envy some American fliers who already have seen action in British Spitfires, but voice the conviction that they themselves will be fully prepared when their turn comes.

Best Planes in World

The pilots call their planes "better than anything else in the world for the particular job we have to do," but express sober awareness that they need education in the newest techniques of air fighting as developed in the past two years of cross-channel warfare.

The rigid training they are getting in the air is matched by activities on the ground at this big base, which originally was constructed for RAF bombers and then handed over intact to the United States army air force.

Ground crews are installing machine shops, servicing newly-arriving planes and in their spare time training for their own particular (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

Ten Men Killed In Crash of Big Airlines Plane

Wreckage of Ship Takes Fire at Chamberlain Airport

MINNEAPOLIS, July 30 (AP)—A take-off crash of an army ferry command cargo plane on Wold Chamberlain airport here today killed ten northwest airlines employees, eight of them "just for the ride."

Congressman Oscar Youngdahl of Minnesota said he was considering asking Congressional investigation into the wreck.

The twin-motored ship was being taken aloft at 7:40 a. m. by First Officers Kenneth S. Olson, 28, and John F. Fischer, 26, both of Minneapolis, for a check flight and had attained an altitude of about 200 feet, witnesses said, when it nosed up, stalled and crashed.

Gasoline Takes Fire

Two hundred seventy gallons of gasoline in the plane's tanks burst into flame, preventing field attaches from reaching bodies in the strewn wreckage.

Eight mechanics and groomers or junior mechanics, all of whom had just gone off duty, climbed aboard the ship for the short check flight. Their bodies and those of the two pilots were charred by the flaming gasoline that burned for fifteen minutes until a United States navy air base fire fighting squad extinguished the blaze.

Congressman Youngdahl announced he will demand a congressional investigation, "if length of the runways contributed to the crash."

Stalin Inspires Troops To Fight With Great Fury

Urges Battle of Annihilation of Nazi Army along Don River

Moscow Admits Further Retirement South of City of Rostov

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, Friday, July 31. (AP)—Inspired by the call of Joseph Stalin to obey the examples of some of the great heroes of Russia's history, the Red army hurled the Germans back in their thrust at Stalingrad Thursday and waged a battle to annihilate those of the enemy who crossed the Don south of Tsimlyansk, the Russians announced today.

Nazis Advance in South

At Voronezh, on the German north Don flank, too, the Germans gave up new positions in the course of bitter fighting, but south of Rostov it was admitted that the weight of German arms again had been too much and that a further retirement had been forced to southeast of Bataisk.

Bataisk, fifteen miles below Rostov, had been given as the scene of previous fighting in that sector.

Many German tanks and infantry regiments, driving with all their power across the barren steppes of the Don bend in an effort to reach the river and drive upon the Volga river city of Stalingrad, were beaten back near Kletskaya, eighty miles northwest of Stalingrad, it was said.

"Southwest of Kletskaya our troops repelled enemy attacks and in some sectors pressed the enemy back," the communique declared.

Several hundred Germans were annihilated, nine tanks destroyed and fourteen planes shot down, it added.

Fight Day and Night

Front line dispatches broadcast on the Moscow radio gave a more graphic description of a seething two-day battle.

"Day and night the shelling never dies down," it said. "In the past two days the fighting has been heaviest where the Don makes its great bend. In this key sector the enemy is going all out to smash through to the river. The enemy is making a furious drive for full mastery of the right bank of the Don at any cost."

"The battle is raging over an area extending several dozen miles along the front and in depth and with every type of troops engaged. In the sky the fighting never ceases."

In the Tsimlyansk area, mid-way between Rostov and Stalingrad, where for days the Germans have been expanding their bridgeheads across the Don, the Red army too reacted as if in response to new official pronouncements that the time has come to end the withdrawals before the overpowering invaders.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 30 (AP)—With scores of naval and military intelligence officers, Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and Baltimore police on hand, officials today began the slow and involved task of clearing for disembarkation nearly 800 refugees from the European and middle east theatres of war.

They arrived at this port aboard the Portuguese steamer Nyassa after twenty days out of Lisbon, punctuated by a five-day stop at Bermuda for inspection by British officials.

Military authorities indicated it might be several days before investigations were completed and all the passengers permitted to leave.

Henderson's Tank Goes Dry, His Dealer Refuses To Fill Small Can

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP)—Price Administrator Leon Henderson, who figures out all the rationing programs, ran out of gasoline and into a bit of grief today. The Office of War Information issued a release telling the story thus:

Carrying a can, Henderson trudged to a service station where he regularly trades.

"Can't do it," said the attendant, as the price boss handed him the can. "Regulations say the gas has to be served in the tank of the car. Look at the notice inside your ration book."

"I know, but I'm out of gas," Henderson pleaded. "How am I supposed to get the car here?"

"Get somebody to push you in here, I guess," offered the attendant, unsympathetically.

"That's not necessary," Henderson contended. "The regulations provide for emergencies like this."

Berwick Strike Called Off When FDR Intervenes

Message from President Brings Vote To Return To Work

BERWICK, Pa., July 30 (AP)—One thousand striking employees at the tank-producing plant of the American Car and Foundry Company voted tonight to return to work at midnight in response to a direct telephoned appeal from President Roosevelt, a union leader announced.

Roy Constine, director of District 10 of the United Steel Workers Union (CIO) said the appeal was telephoned to him through the office of Marvin McIntyre, presidential secretary, who said it was signed by the chief executive.

"The strike is a serious threat to the national tank production program and every day the plant remains shut down spells the loss of lives of more of the men in our armed forces," Constine quoted the message as saying.

The strike began early yesterday. The workers said they were protesting the dismissal of three fellow employees. Robert H. Sloan, United States conciliator, said early today the walkout was gradually affecting all departments at the factory.

Stalin Inspires

today: "One must understand that retreat is impossible."

In the Tsimlyansk area, the Soviet information bureau said simply, "our troops continue to fight with the object of annihilating the enemy group which had crossed the river."

But it added that the Germans were attempting to break through to the south and were throwing in new tank and infantry forces.

Despite the use of reinforcements and dogged counterattacks which resulted in a wedge being driven into Russian lines on one instance, the Germans were "dislodged from a number of strong points" at Voronezh, the communistic said.

1,100 Germans Killed

Nine hundred Germans were killed in four vain assaults against one inhabited locality which the Russians captured, and 200 more were slain in another attempt of the Germans to improve their positions northwest of Voronezh, it was said.

The fury of the battle was concentrated in the Kletskaya area of the great elbow of the Don river, about fifteen miles below Rostov on the railway to the Baku oil fields; and around Tsimlyansk, 120 miles upstream from Rostov, where the Germans have spent thousands of lives from crossings of the slow-moving Don.

It was a 300-mile front of smoke and flames, of thousands of clanking tanks and death-spitting planes, of terrain littered with enormous casualties and rubble of destroyed tanks and other machines of death.

Nazi Speed Reduced

In all these sections, the Germans appeared to be moving slowly and painfully at reduced speed over the treeless plains. Both sides were employing enormous forces, hurling fresh reserves constantly into the battle which is Hitler's supreme bid to knock Russia out of the war and reach the rich oil deposits.

(There was no confirmation of a Vichy broadcast that the Germans had crossed the seven-mile Kerch strait to the Taman peninsula of the Caucasus. However, the forces of Marshal Fritz Erich von Manstein have had sufficient time since the capture of Sevastopol to rest and regroup.

(The German command said the last important rail communication between the Caucasus and the rest of Russia had been cut with the capture of Proletarskaya, some fifty-three miles below the Don in the Tsimlyansk region.)

Though the momentum of the German steamroller seemed slowed, there was no tendency among the Russians to minimize the grave peril to the Russian military position.

Premier Joseph Stalin admonished the Red army:

"Let us be inspired in this war by the courageous images of our great ancestors, Nevsky, Donsky, Minin, Pozharsky, Suvorov and Kutuzov. Be inspired by the victorious banner of the great Lenin."

The official news agency Tass said that Hitler was exhausting swiftly his last manpower resources as "a result of immense losses" and that forces were being transferred from France, the Lowlands and Norway to fill the gaping holes in his lines.

the northwestern sector of Australia, yesterday and caused slight damage and one casualty by bombing from a great height, the headquarters announced.

It was the first raid of the war on Port Hedland, about 1,000 miles southwest of Darwin.

Supreme Court

might ask the court for a writ of certiorari, the customary procedure for bringing the case technically and officially from the court of appeals to the Supreme Court. The refusal to grant such a writ would terminate the case, and be the equivalent of deciding that the high court lacked jurisdiction.

Biddle's challenge of the court's authority to review the case came in response to a question put by Associate Justice Jackson.

"Suppose," Jackson asked, "that the president departs from the law, purely as a military matter, can we interfere or pass upon his action?"

Defends President's Course

Biddle, usually suave self-contained, shouted his answer. The president, as commander-in-chief in time of war is not bound by statute, he said.

Even the question of whether or not established military law has been followed is no concern of the court, he added.

The attorney general spent more than two hours today buttressing by oral argument his contention that the court has no jurisdiction over the case, that the alleged saboteurs are enemies and as such have no rights in the civil courts, and because of the nature of their action, the law of war must supercede the civil statutes.

When he finished, Colonel Royall began a rebuttal argument in which he said the contention of the prisoners that they were refugees and not saboteurs was supported by evidence. He said they came ashore without personal arms, that they abandoned the explosives they brought with them, and made no effort to use them, and that they were apprehended many miles from the points at which the explosives were buried.

And, he said, the evidence was indisputable that one of the men had been terribly mistreated in Germany.

He did not name the man in question, but went immediately into a discussion of the case of Herbert Hans Haupt. Haupt had lived in the United States since he was five years old, but left home when he was twenty-one because of a "little trouble with a girl which has happened to lots of boys of 21."

He wandered from Mexico to Japan and thence to Germany where he arrived on the day that the war began. Immediately, Royall proceeded, Haupt became an object of suspicion. He wanted to get back home, and eventually did.

As quickly as he could, Haupt returned to his home after landing in this country from a German U-boat, Royall said. He applied for a job and registered for the draft.

While the government contends that Haupt has forfeited his citizenship, this is denied by the defense.

Curtiss Commando Plane Soon Will Get into Action

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 30 (AP)—Bad news for Hitler, Hirohito and Company, was released here today with the announcement that the new Curtiss Commando (C-46) military transport plane had passed exhaustive tests and already is in quantity production.

The Commando, more than twice as large as any domestic airliner now in operation, can transport troops and scout cars simultaneously.

An idea of its size can be gained by research engineers' claims that thirty-five of these craft could have transported all of the estimated 30,000 tons of material carried by 7,700 trucks over the Burma road during one month—and more quickly.

Speed Kept Secret

Torpedo-shaped and of all-metal construction, the Commando has a top speed approaching that of combat aircraft, the Curtiss-Wright Corporation said. Its speed, of course, is secret, but a prototype of the Commando spanned the Atlantic non-stop in less than nine hours.

The Commando has a wingspan of 108 feet, weighs 50,000 pounds fully loaded and is powered by two 2,000-horsepower Pratt and Whitney engines.

Aside from the long, grueling ground and flight tests to which the giant troopship of the sky was subjected before being turned over to the army, the most interesting phase of the trials involved a series of troop-carrying demonstrations.

Raise Rate of Fire

From practicing with British guns, they already are able to rush the guns to the field and go into action in well under one minute. They have raised their rate of fire to an average of ten to fifteen shots a minute.

"I'm damned proud of the job we are doing, and you won't find a better layout anywhere," said Major John P. Malone of Minneapolis, base commander of the vast ground organization of approximately ten men for each plane.

Glancing wistfully at a nearby fighter plane, he added, "but I'd give ten years off my life to be permitted to fly with the boys in one of those—they say I'm too old at forty-seven for combat flying."

Captain of U. S. Ship Is Prisoner Aboard Submarine

Henry Stephenson of Larchmont, N. Y., Held by Germans

AN EAST COAST PORT, July 30 (AP)—A veteran sea captain, 66-year-old Henry Stephenson of Larchmont, N. Y., has been made a prisoner of war aboard a German submarine that sank his medium-sized United States merchant vessel July 9 far out in the Atlantic.

Shipmates who survived the sinking and were unmolested by the Nazis told on their arrival here how the German commander imprisoned their captain and turned deaf ears to pleas that he be permitted to accompany them home.

"We'll treat him well," said the English-speaking submarine commander. "He'll be aboard only about eleven days."

First American Prisoner

It was the first report made public here that any seaman from a torpedoed ship had been made a prisoner of war. Ernest MacCiegan, 31, of Hanson, Mass., the chief mate, said the submarine that captured Stephenson apparently was homeward bound to Germany or other Axis territory from a raiding expedition against merchant shipping closer to the Western Atlantic coast.

A torpedo that seriously damaged the merchant ship killed two crewmen. A third was drowned and forty three were uninjured. The Germans sent a boarding party which loaded provisions into a small boat. The vessel then was sunk with shell fire.

As survivors pulled away from the wrecked vessel, the submarine came alongside their lifeboat and asked for the captain.

German "Very Sorry"

"What do you want?" Captain Stephenson asked.

"I want you to come aboard. You are a prisoner of war. I am very sorry."

Captain Stephenson calmly asked his chief engineer for cigars. "We have cigars," the sub commander interposed.

"I don't want your German cigars," Stephenson answered.

He took a half box of cigars under his arm and was ordered below immediately.

Fourteen persons, including two American ambulance drivers, were missing in another lifeboat, but they were believed to have reached safety elsewhere.

Dogfights between British bombers on the one hand and the huge German flying boats, Messerschmitts and Arado-196 heavily-armed seaplanes on the other have become almost a daily occurrence, the British said. Running fights between the Condors and bombers frequently take place hundreds of miles at sea, with little hope of rescue for the vanquished.

Hint Gasoline Blast Injured 14 Firefighters

Grand Jury Will Probe Mysterious Explosion at Roland Park

BALTIMORE, July 30 (AP)—The Baltimore grand jury will hear information tomorrow morning from J. Bernard Wells, state's attorney, concerning the fire and explosion Tuesday at the home of Royal M. Gill, Roland Park, which injured fourteen firemen, two seriously.

Wells said that he had received a report from the fire department and had "concluded to lay the matter before the grand jury tomorrow morning."

Pinkney W. Wilkinson, secretary to the board of fire commissioners, said that the commissioners had decided to send the report on the fire to the state's attorney, following a special meeting yesterday.

Both Wilkinson and Wells refused to divulge the contents of the report.

Contents of four fifty gallon drums found in the place, which firemen said smelled like gasoline, has been examined by a city chemist and his findings are included in the report.

The fire occurred shortly before 4 p. m. Tuesday afternoon. It was discovered by a valet. Shortly after firemen arrived and were fighting a fire in the basement, an explosion caused flying debris to injure two of the fire-fighters, later, a second explosion injured eleven more firemen and shoved a brick wall off its foundation.

of petroleum and it is very embarrassing for anyone to make a statement of that sort when he doesn't know the facts," and I don't agree with his conclusions."

Merchant Marine Of the Air Seen By Glenn Martin

Manufacturer Says 250-Ton Flying Boats Are Coming

NEW YORK, July 30 (AP)—Glenn L. Martin, airplane manufacturer, declared tonight that giant air transports, each capable of carrying 150 fully-equipped soldiers anywhere on earth within five days, could be turned out at any rate required if materials were made available.

Speaking on a March of Time broadcast over NBC network from his Middletown, Md., plant, Martin declared:

Safest Transportation

"Air is the only really safe means of transport in the war. After nearly three years of war, the overseas airways have recorded no casualties. Air vessels need no convoys, for they have a wide choice of routes, altitudes and cloud cover. They can land just about anywhere there is water. Their landing field can't be destroyed, because you can't bomb a hole in water."

He described his newly-completed seventy-ton flying boat Mars as capable of carrying twenty tons of war cargo and flying non-stop to Europe and back, or from Newfoundland to Hawaii.

Such flying boats, he said, can make twenty-four round trips while a Liberty surface freight vessel is making one.

300-Mile-an-Hour War

"But this is a 300-mile-an-hour war," Martin declared. "A fleet of 300 flying vessels could put 45,000 men in Europe in three days. And we can build those 300 flying vessels with only one-tenth the structural materials required for twenty-five Liberty ships."

Martin said he recognized no limit to the ultimate size of flying boats. The next step after the seventy-ton Mars, he explained, is a 125-ton flying boat, and after that, one of 250 tons.

"The moment peace arrives," he said, "the era of air commerce will be with us. Air vessels as big as the Mars and bigger will be available and vital to help the stalled wheels of world trade start again, and they will be the nucleus around which Americans can build a fast, safe and economical merchant marine of the air."

Nation's First Labor-Management Committee Named at Baltimore

BALTIMORE, July 30 (AP)—The nation's first labor-management committee assigned specifically to the problems of labor supply was appointed in Baltimore today.

A field office of the War Manpower Commission was established in this area nearly two weeks ago to close the gap between war industry needs and available labor supply here and to fashion a blueprint for voluntary action in other regions similar labor supply crisis.

Pennsylvania railroad where they were entrained for New York City. They were followed by a group of sixty-four enemy aliens or other persons whose papers were not in order. This group was taken in two buses to the Ft. Howard detention camp.

14 Americans Aboard Ship

Fourteen Americans nationals, none of them yet permitted to leave, were reported aboard the vessel. The only passenger who left the boat free to go anywhere he chose was Jose Luis Archer, son of the Portuguese consul of the same name in New York.

Three little Spanish brothers—nine to twelve—told a fairly typical story. At the start of the Spanish civil war they lived with six other brothers and sisters, their parents and seventeen laborers on a truck farm they owned near Barcelona.

About four years ago the family moved to France to avoid the terrors of war. On the way one little sister got lost. Their mother was wounded while crossing the frontier and died in a French hospital. Four brothers died in the Civil war. One brother who stayed behind hasn't been heard from since.

In France they got into another holocaust. Their father is now in a labor battalion, where they do not know. They themselves were in a refugee camp near Vichy until sent to Marseilles, thence to Lisbon and from there to this country.

Canadian Nurse Arrives

One of the last to leave the ship today was Canadian born Mrs. Jeanne Marie Bougerol Martin, a volunteer war nurse in Paris when the Germans entered France and her twin sons, Roger and Jeanne Martin, both at Casa Blanca, Morocco.

Going to France as a volunteer nurse, she was sent to Algeria with a group of refugee children. Following the French armistice she went to Marseilles, where, in September of last year, she married an officer of the French merchant marine. He was killed soon after.

Her brother, Joaquin, enlisted in the French army, and the last Mrs. Martin heard of him he was stationed on the island of Arrba, off the coast of Venezuela.

Bombing of Cairo May Bring Early Attack on Rome

Churchill Expected To Keep His Promise Made to Foes in 1941

CAIRO, July 30 (AP)—Axis air raids dropped bombs on Cairo proper in the pre-day moonlight today in defiance of a long-standing threat by Prime Minister Churchill that the RAF would reply to any such attack with raids on Rome.

Churchill made his threat to retaliate with bombs on the Italian capital in 1941, before the fall of Greece, declaring Rome would be a prime target if either Athens or Cairo was bombed.

Athens Never Bombed

Although Athens could have been attacked easily from the air the ancient Greek capital never felt the thud of a bomb.

The Germans bombed right up to the edge of Athens, however, attacking the adjacent port of Piraeus and destroying dock installations and much shipping in the harbor.

The moonlit attacks on Cairo and widespread Allied airdromes in the Nile delta area were made by small flights of Axis bombers apparently seeking to cripple the courses of Allied bombings on Marshal Erwin Rommel's sea and land communications.

Sirens Sound Alarm

Sirens screamed the alarm in Cairo, the Suez canal zone and in other scattered areas far behind the stalemated desert from west of El Alamein, and Cairo's defenses threw up the greatest anti-aircraft barrage ever seen in this area.

The lull in the desert was broken only by the incessant artillery duels and patrol actions, the latter of which turned up the fact that the northern sector no-man's-land was littered with heaps of unburied enemy dead.

Because of the non-schedule nature of the flight, Northwest Airlines officials had difficulty identifying victims and number aboard the ship.

One groomer, Paul F. Parlin, St. Paul, at first reported aboard the ill fated ship, was found home in bed.

Three army men, Sergeant Wilbur W. Callen, Nampa, Idaho, Tech, Sgt. Fred Edwards, Phoenix, Ariz., and Corporal William Nolan, Elkhart, Ind., were thanking their luck. They had entered the ship just before the take-off but were ordered off by the pilots because the ship was loaded.

They said I looked like a ghost coming out of the darkness. I was wrapped in the silk parachute, trying to keep warm. As I was coming down, I remember seeing the plane burning on a slope a long ways away.

Patterson Favors Gas Rationing On National Basis

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP)—Robert P. Patterson, under secretary of war, said today the rubber situation remained "critical" despite "sanguine expectations" which he said were aroused by what he called public misunderstanding of a recent rubber industry exhibit of the possibility of low-grade recapping of tires for civilian use.

"There were some conditions attached to that proposal," he said, "one of them being that there could be no driving over forty miles an hour and another that the over-all drive total be reduced by forty per cent."

"Well, I know of no way to cut the amount of driving by forty per cent, except by nation-wide gasoline rationing. Unessential driving, on Sundays, holidays, vacations and night trips to the movies has got to be a thing of the past for some time."

An X-ray device has been invented for inspecting rubber shoe heels in factories to reveal if the metal washers used to hold nails when heels are attached to shoes are misplaced.

More than 1,800 fats and oils are known, not counting petroleum and essential oils used in perfumes.

Mothers Should Make Sure Boys Abroad Get Mail

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Scores of women have written to me that letters to their husbands and sweethearts have not been answered. Others have written that their letters have been returned.

If the envelopes are like those which some women have sent to me to confirm the fact that overseas letters were undelivered, it's not surprising they've never reached their destination.

Letters should be written care of Postmaster, Port of Embarkation—New York or San Francisco.

Use Pen and Ink

The little woman, when she sits down to write to her husband or sweetheart, instead of writing as plainly as possible on an envelope, picks up the stub of a pencil on the kitchen shelf and writes to Private John Smith or whatever the beloved's name happens to be. She's probably agitated at the time, uses a hard pencil that traces a faint line or sometimes indents without tracing at all, and lets it go at that.

Let me beseech you with all the vehemence at my command, when you write to your husband or sweetheart overseas, to buy a bottle of ink and a pen. Give that stub of a pencil on the kitchen shelf a holiday until you've finished.

You needn't write on high-priced note-paper. Get white or cream, passing over the poisonous pinks and the gangrenous greens.

"Gloomsters" Not Wanted When you get down to writing your letter, please don't write "gloomsters." Your soldier boy's pay has been jumped from $21 to $50—ample cause for rejoicing. If you're his wife, part of this will be allotted to you, so be cheerful about the whole business and don't write about illness. Aunt Maria's neuralgia may be trying to all the family, but don't send bulletins concerning it overseas.

Write sprightly, newsy letters. A young father is more interested in the baby's new tooth than sugar rationing.

And one more word—don't talk to your neighbors about where your husband or sweetheart or son is stationed overseas. In Australia they refer to these talkative wives as "chatter bugs." Don't join that organization.

Hope on Films Foundation

Dear Miss Fairfax: I'm a housewife, 28 years old. I have been married for nine years and have a son of four. My husband, four years older than I am, has a fair job, but we're in debt up to our necks, which gives us scant spending money for luxuries. Hence we never go out.

Here's my problem: I met a boy about my age and fell in love with him. He's in the Army and wants me to marry him when he returns. However, I didn't tell him about my little son.

He's a swell dancer, and can give me the things I have always wanted, which my husband cannot. Do you think I should get a divorce? And what about my little son?

PUZZLED.

You seem to be building on very flimsy prospects when you consider breaking up your home for anything so indefinite as this soldier promises. He suggests you get a divorce.

Falling in love or even imagining one is in love produces considerable mental disturbance. Add to this the excitement of war, and you're apt to have a tremendous bonfire without much foundation.

Courtesy Sometimes Overlooked

Dear Miss Fairfax: About two months ago I invited two enlisted men over for Sunday night supper. I knew them only slightly. They seemed to enjoy themselves, but I have not heard from them since. I am wondering if it would seem forward to invite them again, or should I just forget about them?

WAITING.

Before war-time hurry disrupted our good manners, these two young men would probably have paid what was known as a "party call," a visit after having had a meal. But it's too much to expect old-fashioned courtesy these days when everyone is rushing at top speed.

If you found these young soldiers agreeable, it would be quite proper to invite them again. But if they were just young men you were inviting for patriotic reasons and you didn't find them interesting, there is no necessity to repeat the invitation.

Allotment Check

Dear Miss Fairfax: My husband has sent me an allotment check from Australia and says he will send one every month. As it will be cheaper for me to take the children and live with my mother, where should I write to let them know of my change of address?

(Mrs.) E. F. G.

Write both to the Adjutant General, War Department, and the Administrator of Veteran Affairs, Washington, D. C. Give your old address, and say you are changing your residence to the new number.

Must Have Courage

Dear Miss Fairfax: Soon after I enlisted in the Army, I married a girl I had loved for a long time, but I didn't tell my parents. My insurance policy is made out to my mother, but now that I'm married I think my wife should have some of the insurance. Should anything happen to me, my parents that I'm married

How can I break the news to and that I want to change my policy to include them all?

W

From the number of letters I have received along the same lines as yours, my dear boy, I have come to the conclusion that it requires greater courage to face parents and confess a secret marriage than it does to face bullets.

You'll just have to write a letter to your mother and father, tell them of your marriage and say that you are including your wife as a beneficiary in your insurance. Then decide what amount you will allot her.

Furloughs

Dear Miss Fairfax: In the latter part of February my fiancée was transferred from San Diego to Chicago. As yet he has had no furlough. Since he is graduating in about two months, I would like to know if he will be granted a furlough then, and how much of a furlough will he get? He's in the Marine Corps.

A. M. H.

Furlough are entirely within the jurisdiction of the Commanding Officer. Your young man will have to make application to his Commandant for leave.

The Turning Point May Be Near

WHILE statesmen talk of the post-war world, the war is moving toward what may be its turning point for better or for worse. The Russian army may be counted on to put up a gallant last-ditch defense beyond the Don—but, if and when the last ditch is lost, what then?

According to one school of thought, the Germans then will pour into the Caucasus, range eastward until they have made secure their loot in the form of oil and other riches—and then settle down better equipped than the United Nations for a long, long war.

Another school of thought holds to a more hopeful thesis — that the Russian army, if withdrawn intact from its present lines, still can keep on fighting and prevent the Germans from exploiting the fruits of victory in Russia's great storehouse of natural resources.

To those who insist that it is "all or nothing" now on the Russian front there seems only one salvation for the Allied cause—the immediate setting up of the long-sought second front in the West. Extreme advocates of a second front demand that one be set up at once, even if this means "another Dunkerque."

Military men in Washington and London may be expected to be distinctly cold to the suggestion, that an Anglo-American army be immediately dispatched to the continent, if only as a sacrifice force. If there is to be any invasion of Western Europe it must be by an army that expects to stay there. Military authorities in Washington and London are right about that.

The real question is whether Britain and the United States are ready to send across the channel an army large enough—and strongly enough supported by air and by sea—to stay in Western Europe and eventually invade Germany.

If the military authorities here and in Britain know the answer, they aren't saying anything right now—and properly so. If a second front really is in the offing, one immediate military need is for silence and plenty of it.

This may be merely a coincidence, but there has been a sudden silence in the British press on the second front question.

Scrap Metal and Fats Are Needed Now

UNTIL this war is ended, the American people will be engaged in one collection drive after another, and necessarily so. This is unavoidable if factories are to have sufficient raw materials to produce the implements of war.

Right now drives for scrap metal and fats are under way. While not overlooking anything that may turn up about the home or the farm, people are being asked to give particular attention during the coming weeks to the salvaging of fats and metals. Meat markets are serving as collection centers for the fats, where housewives will be paid a few cents a pound for all turned in, while the gasoline service stations will serve as collection centers for the scrap metal as they did in the rubber drive.

The importance of both drives is obvious. The fats are needed for various manufacturing processes, chiefly that involved in the making of explosives. If the nation's blast furnaces are to be kept operating at capacity this winter, they must have the scrap metals. It is estimated that on the farms alone there is enough old iron and steel to build twice as many battleships as they are in the world.

No plans have been made as yet with regard to the collection of scrap tin in this country, but in all probability the people will be called upon in the near future to contribute it. Wherefore, in looking over the premises for scrap metals, it would be a good idea to sort out old tin on hand against this future demand, and to add the discarded tin cans. These should be scalded in order to avoid sanitary difficulties, and mashed flat after the tops and bottoms are cut out, in order to save space.

The Wives Are Heroic, Also

IT IS FITTING that a word of tribute be said about Mary Welch Devereux, who died suddenly in Washington at the age of 27. Twenty-seven is young for anyone to die. It is particularly regrettable in the case of Mary Devereux.

Mary Devereux was the wife of Maj. James P. Devereux of the marines, the officer who directed that epic fourteen-day defense of Wake Island and is presumably a prisoner of the Japanese. She was the mother of his eight-year-old son.

Mary Devereux will be remembered by Americans as the wife of one of the nation's outstanding heroes of this war, as the charming, youthful mother of a grave youngster already firmly determined to follow in his father's footsteps in the marines. But even if she were none of these things, she would be remembered for the words she spoke in a broadcast last month addressed to "our men under arms."

"You need not worry about your wives, your mothers, your daughters, or sweethearts," she said. "We women will do what we have to do. We will do the work we have to do. We will do without what we must do without. We will not complain that we are lonely, because we know that you are doing more than we—doing without more than we—and you are not complaining—and all this for our country, for us, for our very existence."

Thus we see the important part their wives play in the lives of our heroes.

Volunteer Firemen Should Be Used

PARTIAL ANSWER has been given by the Maryland State Firemen's Association to the complaints lately heard regarding the lack of firemen in the civilian defense organization.

At its annual state convention just held at Frederick, the organization adopted resolutions urging that the Office of Civilian Defense and the Maryland Council of Defense give recognition to the organized volunteer fire companies of the nation by appointing to the national committee and to the state council of civilian defense a representative of the organized volunteer fire service who shall be an active fireman trained in firematic problems to the degree enabling him to give intelligent counsel and information to them.

The organized volunteer fire companies have not been properly identified by the OCD in that they are not recognized to the extent that they can be considered eligible for all equipment necessary for their personal safety and the safety of their communities. Nor are they recognized during an air raid alarm by other civilian defense units because of the lack of any uniform identification approved by the OCD, which identification has resulted in unnecessary delay of firemen arriving at their stations.

There seems no good reason why these requests should not have prompt attention.

A Comparison With a Lesson

COMPARISONS are sometimes as helpful as they are interesting. The National Safety Council proffers one that earns the double description.

Casualties in the United States armed forces since Pearl Harbor were recently reported at 4,801 dead, 3,218 wounded and 36,124 missing—a total of 44,143.

But, the council notes, casualties to American workers since Pearl Harbor have been 30,000 dead and 2,500,000 wounded, while accidents of all kinds to Americans since Pearl Harbor bring the totals to 60,000 killed and approximately 5,500,000 wounded. That's a lot of people.

The council has offered the comparison as evidence that accidents help the Axis in draining American manpower vital to victory.

"Casualties on the battlefield are a necessary sacrifice to perpetuate our freedom," says Ned H. Dearborn, executive vice-president of the council, but "casualties on the homefront, through accidents, are preventable and hinder the efforts of our fighting men by sabotaging the production of the weapons and material of war. Those who fall in battle die for a cause. Those struck down by accidents die in vain."

Hence it is the duty of every patriotic American to exert extra efforts now toward preventing accidents at home.

The United States Army has leased a number of swanky hotels to house aviation cadets. Suggested recruiting slogan: "Join the Air Corps and Get First-Class Room Service."

Germany's war schedule, it is revealed, called for the capture of the Suez canal in June. There's another schedule that is subject to change without notice.

Women in Business

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Benny and I were smart. We had a teacher who ranked everyone in the class from Rank One to Rank Thirty-three—and we were champions.

Benny the negro boy and I fought it out each month for supremacy. Sometimes I was Rank One. Sometimes I was Rank One. I'd beat him in arithmetic. He'd beat me in grammar. We saw-sawed back and forth and enjoyed fighting for first place. We were friends. We liked each other and respected each other, and we didn't take the rivalry too seriously.

And then a New Girl came into the class! She was a cute little thing, I suppose, with red hair and freckles on her turned-up nose. And she was smart, too. That was all right; she could be as smart as she pleased as long as she stayed down there in Rank Three or Four—where girls belonged—and didn't compete with Benny and me.

But she didn't know her place. She was one of those kids who always had her nose in a book. And she took her school books home—we found that out, later—and studied her lessons before supper and before she went to bed. So she always knew where Mesopotamia was and how to spell words like "weird" and "hypothesis," and she could tell you in three seconds the names of Columbus's ships.

So the second month she was in the class she was Rank One! Benny was second and I was third. The next month I was Rank One and she was second. Then Benny was Rank One and That Girl was second. And then she was Rank One again!

And Benny and I quit! We weren't going to compete with Any Old Girl. She could have rank one if she wanted to fight for it that badly. We wouldn't work so hard.

So SHE was Rank One and we were second and third ever after. And finally I got sent to the Principal for using a bean shooter in class but it was really HER fault—and her fault, too, that Benny and I didn't get such good marks any more.

That explains why men don't like women in business. Because women take business too seriously and don't know when to stop. That's why!

Millions Are Hard Hit by Wage Cuts, Lawrence Notes

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, July 30.—This might well be called the era of deception. Not only are the politicians misleading the people as to how the cost of the war can be paid for by a small class of citizens but they are also proposing a wage-cut of tremendous size for a vast number of citizens.

David Lawrence

Thus, while weekly earnings in manufacturing industries have been repeatedly increased and now, under the new formula of wage "stabilization," are to be increased still more to make up for a rise in the cost of living, the people who have saved their money are undergoing a considerable slash in their income from savings. Nobody has as yet proposed relief or income stabilization for the millions of persons who are suffering a loss of interest income on savings or who have been undergoing such a steady decline by reason of new deal policies before and after world war II began.

Treasury bonds which used to yield the investor 3.6 per cent in 1929 and as high as 3.68 in 1932 have been forced down by governmental policy so that the yield is down to 1.97 per cent.

During that same period average weekly earnings in manufacturing industries have more than doubled, going from $17.86 in 1932 to $37.40 in May, 1942.

Investment Hit Hard

Interest rates on time deposits have come down from 3.1 per cent in 1932 to close to one per cent in 1942. This is a wage cut for investors of sixty-six and two-thirds per cent. Certainly if there is any "stabilization" required, here is a place where there is a crying need.

Take first rate bonds of corporations. Whereas the rate was about five per cent in 1932, the yield of income in May, 1942, had been reduced to the 2.85 per cent level. This, of course, is the direct result of the way the Treasury has cut down interest rates and slashed the income of the thrifty who save their money.

Now, in the face of the foregoing trends which show that persons who have savings suffered a severe cut in wages in the last decade, it is proposed by the labor politicians that another kind of a cut be imposed on those who have saved money and invested it in corporations—a cut by means of heavy taxation that will make it difficult for some companies to meet interest payments on bonds and impossible for other companies to pay dividends on stocks in which the thrifty may have invested their money hoping for a steady income.

Dividends Go Down

There are hundreds of thousands of persons who have invested their money in the large corporations, many of which are now announcing a cut in dividends. War taxation is a necessity and persons who are having their dividends cut are fully aware of the necessities which require such a course. But they look askance at the other groups of citizens which, in the face of a big wage cut for one group, are actually insisting on a wage increase for their own groups. There hardly seems to be a uniform sacrifice in that kind of public policy.

There are literally millions of persons who own insurance policies. They have been told that their premiums would run about a certain figure each year. They now face the fact that insurance companies cannot possibly invest their funds and get a normal yield. This may mean a rise in the cost of insurance premiums and, on top of that, the Treasury refuses to permit the citizen and deduction from income taxes on account of insurance premium expense to the individual.

Poor Insurance Prospects

Another aspect of the insurance situation forced upon the thrifty citizens of the nation by unsound policies of the New Deal relates to

Rank and File of Labor and Farm Are Ready To Fight Inflation, Sullivan Says

By MARK SULLIVAN

The question, increasingly asked, is "Will inflation be prevented?" The answer is in Washington, within official Washington. But observers cannot say what the answer is; they can only report the trends and fragments of evidence they see.

The most recent series of incidents began about two weeks ago. A panel of the War Labor Board recommended that all workers in four steel companies should have a wage raise of $1 a day. That recommendation caused sharp warnings of inflation, some coming from government officials outside the War Labor Board. When the Board came to act officially, they reduced the recommended raise from $1 a day to forty-five cents a day.

This did not materially allay the warnings of inflation. For the case just decided was recognized as a key case. It would be followed, and promptly was followed by demands for wage raises in the rest of the steel industry, and in other industries.

Also, the War Labor Board, at the time it granted the increase of forty-five cents a day, went outside the case to propose a broad policy, applicable to wages generally. The Board said that since January 1941, there has been a fifteen per cent increase in the cost of living. Therefore, said the Board, wages generally should have a level fifteen per cent higher than in January 1941.

New Status

By that, the board seemed to accept the increase in cost of living as a new status, a thing past and done. To correspond with this, the board said, wages likewise should be raised to a new status, fifteen per cent above January 1941. The board seemed to have a theory that after they had brought wages to the new status, they could stabilize them there. There would be a new and permanent wage standard—115 per cent of the level eighteen months ago.

But defects in this theory were quickly pointed out. One is, that the War Labor Board does not control all wages. It can act only in cases where there is a dispute, where labor leaders ask for an increase, and employers resist. Many increases in wages can come in other ways. Employers may grant a de-

Weather Is Chief Obstacle in Mass Bombing Attacks

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 30.—The British are really making hash out of German industrial cities one by one, but experience on this night bombing front has placed certain definite limitations on what can be done with it.

The impatience of certain American observers at the failure to develop these grand aerial assaults faster and further, has cast some reflection on British efficiency. It is not that.

The British started this super-bombing campaign the night of June 25, and then skipped three weeks more before marshaling seven hundred for an attack on Duisburg, July 13-14. Two weeks later they put six hundred over Hamburg on two successive nights (dropping 175,000 incendiaries and using 4,000-ton bombs).

They hit Bremen with a thousand planes on the night of June 25, and then skipped three weeks more before marshaling seven hundred for an attack on Duisburg, July 13-14. Two weeks later they put six hundred over Hamburg on two successive nights (dropping 175,000 incendiaries and using 4,000-ton bombs).

Intervals Forced

Not inefficiency, but insurmountable obstacles of weather and operations forced the long intervals of comparatively quiet nights when only a few squadrons were able to indulge in this new type of warfare.

The British found, for instance, that their losses from collision among their own planes were greater than from enemy action, on moonless nights. This meant they could efficiently hurl thousand-plane raids at Germany only half of the month, when the moon permitted, and even in that half of the month only when there were no heavy clouds or rain to obscure vision.

Summer night raiding is further restricted by the fact that only four hours of darkness is to be expected in the latitude of German industrial cities (which are on the latitude of Labrador). This condition, however, will improve constantly as winter draws near, and eases the complicated traffic problems of putting as many as a thousand ships into the air over a single city at different levels and in consecutive attacking squadrons.

Wiping Out Job Big

When you figure that the Germans have hundreds of industrial cities spread all through Europe, over a much wider area than the industry of England, and face all other practical limitations, you will see fully the difficulty of wiping out Germany by this means.

It is easy to talk of mustering the 5,000 bombers necessary for sustained super bombing attacks, but quite another thing to get a thousand of them in the air half the time.

There is no question about the damage done when they hit. The British have accurate reports of damage done, these having seeped out through Switzerland from the accounts of neutral consuls (largely Latin-American) in the German cities, which have been attacked, and from travelers and German newspapers reaching neutral ground. No neutral report is necessary, however.

Land Front Better

Everyone knows the damage the Germans did in Britain and the never put into the air more than 300 planes at night. The Nazis leveled Coventry in a few nights, never using a third as many bombers as the British can occasionally put into the air now.

Thus while this aerial battle-ground, sometimes called the second front (first in this column) can be accounted a substantial success so far, there are few who believe it will be able to take the place of a second front by land invasion, no matter how greatly it is expanded.

British losses have averaged slightly less than five percent, which makes raiding entirely successful from that standpoint, but it is difficult to believe super-bombing can do more than soften Germany for invasion.

Big Bombs A Success

The new 4,000-pound bombs, supposed to destroy an entire city block, were first used experimentally at Duisburg, July 13-14, with such success they will be employed on an increasingly large scale as the plan of attack expands this fall.

Americans participating so far, are not fighting as units. They merely fill in British squadrons. Six or eight participated in the first daylight raid on Holland last week and another similar size group this week helped out in an attack on France.

Further investigation reveals they flew British B-24 Douglas bombers only because the necessity for coherent squadron maneuvering required them to use ships of the same type as the British.

NEW YORK—The fleet was in, but the boys weren't whooping it up. They were sitting very quietly, instead, at Lewisohn Stadium, listening to symphony music.

This has been going on in New York every summer for 25 years—ever since the last war, when the Stadium concerts were begun on June 23, 1918, as a morale measure, with service men admitted free.

Once more a morale measure, the concerts this year began with an-gular, short-sighted Artur Rodzinski as the first of six conductors. The orchestra, as always after the first few seasons, is the New York Philharmonic-Symphony. Again service men get the breaks.

The prime mover 25 years ago was Mrs. Charles S. Guggenheimer—and she still is boss. Two and a half decades have made Mrs. Guggenheimer "Minnie" to thousands, including the old timers in the orchestra itself.

The concerts have rolled up an aggregate audience of approximately 6 million—now that amplification makes use of the entire stadium area possible, around 300,000 people hear the concerts each summer.

herbs and specially made wine. This beginning of the process is the working out of a formula which has been in his family for many generations.

Miss Gambarelli's second job comes after the wines are finished. No wine is sold until it has her okay. She says:

"Wine is judged by the three senses—seeing, smelling and tasting. The important tests of a wine are for its color and brilliance, its bouquet and its taste, which includes testing it for smoothness."

Born in Italy, Miss Gambarelli is a strong advocate of American wines. She says:

"America can and does produce fine wines—wines that compare with the very best of foreign imports. There is no reason to feel that with the foreign markets closed, American wine-lovers will suffer. We have many kinds of grapes in this country from which a variety of fine wines are being made."

While America cannot yet be called a wine-drinking country, Miss Gambarelli points out its increased use.

"Wine is fast becoming a popular choice of the smart, sophisticated set in America. They are becoming educated to its uses both as a drink and in cooking. Food is better if wine is used. The flavor is improved and wine takes away the greasiness, making it more digestible. Wine must be used judiciously though—too much in a dish is no good."

Victoria Gambarelli is happy in the wine business and doesn't regret for a moment that her youthful ambitions for a musical career were lost. Naturally shy and retiring, she was so stage struck at her debut as a concert pianist that her fingers "froze" to the keys. Refusing to remain idle after this sad experience at the piano, she devoted her attention to the mysteries of business.

With the outlook of a born artist, plus natural feminine intuition, she chose the grape industry in 1927, selling choice California grapes to wine-lovers, who were permitted to make their own wine if they wished.

Parents Advised Not To Pamper Their Children

Many Youngsters Never Have Had the Privi- lege To Struggle

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Some grown-up people never have become adults. It is in the kind, considerate home, with parents who have been over-indulgent with their children, or who have made undue sacrifices for them, where we find most frequently the child who has never learned to take care of himself.

This child has had too much mothering, too much help from home. He may never have had the privilege nor urge to struggle.

You and I know some young married couples who are still fed and clothed by their parents.

Parents at Fault

Many a young man never married just because he has not learned to go it alone and put himself in the position of one providing for a family first. He always has had all his wants supplied. A lot of them have had practically all the urge to fit themselves for being useful taken away from them by their own parents.

Some, too, to please their parents, have gone through high school, but could not muster up the courage to break away from their loved ones long enough to go to college or to get a job away from home.

Suppose such a child gets a job near home, and earns a reasonably good wage. He may spend it all, even calling on his parents to supplement it. (Young women as well as young men are often in this class.) It may never occur to him to pay room rent or board, or even to buy his clothes.

Don't Pamper Children

He may have no wish to marry for he dreads to leave his home. If he does, he settles down as near his parents' roof as possible. He learns, no doubt, to expect his mother to help care for his babies and even to assist his wife in her housework.

Many a grandmother wears herself out caring for her grandchildren.

A certain university graduate I know is on a modest salary, but he lives beyond it. His father buys his clothes and cigarettes. That father came up from the ranks by making a terrific struggle. Now he is using his small fortune to teach his grown-up boy to depend on him. There are thousands of such conscientious parents.

Teach Independence

You want to avoid being harmful to your children in this way? Begin as early as possible to teach them independence. They should learn to wait upon themselves, to save money and to spend it wisely.

Train the child by giving him an allowance early. Hold him rigidly to it. Make money difficult for him to get. Let him earn some of it whenever reasonably possible. Prepare him to be comfortable in your absence. Make him feel the need to fit himself for earning his own living. Give him the best education you can afford, and that he can profit by.

A list of books on marriage, education for marriage, and making and getting it may be had by writing me at 235 East Forty-fifth street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems

Q When dinner is ready some one must go searching all over the block for our eight-year-old boy.

A Cease the searching. Name the hour when he must report home and remain till after dinner. His having a watch might help him. Otherwise he can check with a neighbor's clock. When he arrives late let him eat what is left and remain indoors the rest of the evening. In extreme cases his meal when he arrives late, should be very meagre and without any of his favorite foods. Other measures might be better, but in any event the present way should cease, if the lad is to have worthy training in character and citizenship.

Romance Thumbs a Ride

by ALLEN EPPES

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE
"Oh, I've got an idea!" Claire said. "We'll take the wienies with us, and cook them out at my house!
We can have them in the dining room in comfort, and—"
"Count me out," said Dian.
Claire was annoyed. "Still Miss Gloom, I see," she said.
"Maybe," said Dian, "but by the time we get back to town it'll be pretty late, and I'm tired."
"Another headache?"
"No. Nor have I seen a chance to sprain my ankle."
"Girls, girls!" said Bill, trying to sound humorous, but not feeling that way at all. "I suppose it's up to us, Paul, to reload the boat.
Let's begin."
Paul said nothing. He got up and began busying himself.
When he and Bill had gone down to the boat, Dian turned to Claire.
"Now that we're alone," she said,
"I want you to know, Claire, that I think you are the cock-eyed limit."
"Why, for heaven's sake?" Claire asked, wide-eyed.
"And don't pull that wide-eyed look on me," Dian snapped. "Save it for the men—they seem to fall for it. I never would." And before Claire could speak, she rushed on.
"It's females like you that make our sex look like 30 cents. Honest, Claire, why don't you stop acting,
and display just one genuine emotion?"
"Well, of all the nerve!" Claire gasped. "Talking to me like that.
Can I help it if men like me—and merely take you for granted? Can I help it if you can't hold your men, and—"
"Oh, shut up!" said Dian. "Some day a man with some brains in his head is going to see right through you, and when he does, it's going to be just too bad. I've been hoping and praying that Bill at least would be able to see through you.
But he hasn't—evidently. He's as stupid as he's good looking—the masculine equivalent of 'beautiful but dumb!'"
Claire laughed. "Goodness me, you are all out up, aren't you?"
she said. "I'm sorry you feel you have to take it out on me simply because Bill and Paul prefer my type to yours."
"Come on, let's start gathering up this junk," said Dian.
"Very well," said Claire. "And if I ever ask you to help me again, it'll be because I'm completely out of my mind."
"That," said Dian, "suits me perfectly. After this, pick a girl who's dumber than I could ever possibly be. I can read you like a book.
Claire—so that makes playing your game pretty difficult for me."
"Well, it doesn't really matter," Claire said, smiling to herself. "I shan't be in this neck of the woods much longer."
Dian looked at her.
"So I gathered," she said.
"What do you mean?"
"I just got through telling you that I could read you like a book."
"So what?"
"So I can easily understand that cat-that-ate-the-canary look on your beautiful pan."
"Really, Dian—I—"
"You've made your decision," Dian said. "That's easy to see. And now you feel so pleased with yourself you can hardly hear it."
Claire dumped napkins and silver into the picnic hamper.
"Don't take any credit to yourself," she said. "You haven't had anything to do with the decision."
"Oh, I don't know about that," Dian said. "At least I supplied contrast. I was a spot on the scenery, anyway."
"Nonsense!"
"I suppose you'll always remember this little island," Dian added.
"You can think of it, and say,
There's a little island down in Virginia, and upon its gentle slopes I chose myself a husband! And your children—if you ever forget yourself long enough to have any—will look up and say, 'Mother, darling, tell us all about it!' And you will leaving out no details, not even the kiss on the sands after the twosome swim."
"Then you saw us?" said Claire.
"I did—so did Paul."
"Then that explains everything
—why you two were such wet blankets!"
"Perhaps!"
"Goodness, Dian, I thought Wes-tons were good losers."
"They are—although I've had nothing to lose,"
"I wonder," said Claire cryptically.
Dian wiped out the salad bowl with a paper napkin. "By this time tomorrow," she said, "you will either be on the way to New York with Bill Rollins, or on the way to the West Indies with Paul Peters—so let's call it a day."
"And," said Claire, "don't you

Value of Liver as Protective Food Is Now More Apparent, Doctor Says

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
With the increase of our growing knowledge of the protective foods and the deficiency diseases, the value of the use of liver in the diet becomes more and more apparent.
The protective foods include the vitamins, some of the minerals and quite a few others. Their peculiar function is that they are not used exactly as fuel or as tissue build-liver tissue actually enters into the formation of blood cells, but because it contains some chemical which stimulates the cells in the bone marrow where blood is formed to regular activity.

As a comparative instance, a substance called nicotinic acid was found by researches conducted in 1937 to be a necessary part of the diet, although in very small quantities. In order to preserve perfect health. When it is not present, the skin becomes unhealthy and rough and scaly, and there is some disturbance of digestion and sometimes of the central nervous system.
Now it was further found, as in the case of liver, nicotinic acid does not actually enter into tissue building but, in the language of the scientists, "provides material for the building of co-enzymes used in tissue metabolism" or, in plain words, it provides substances that influence the cells to healthy activity. It is like a boss on a construction job: the boss does not lay any of the bricks but he keeps the gang that does lay the bricks pepped up.

In the regular progress of the study of any of the vitamins, the first step is to find that such and such bodily deficiencies result from the lack of the vitamin, and the second is to examine all the foods in the world to find out which ones contain the vitamin. And lo and behold, when the scientists went looking for nicotinic acid, liver led all the rest in concentrated amounts of it. Liver contains about 1.2 milligrams of nicotinic acid per gram of dried substance, while wheat germ contains about 0.05 and baker's yeast, the nearest competitor to liver, about 0.5 milligrams.

Along the same line, notice that vitamin D is found in most concentrated form in cod liver oil.
Later it was discovered that nearly any fish liver contains vitamin D in high concentration and certainly animal livers in general contain it to some degree.

Body's Great Storehouse
Why does liver contain so many of these elements? Because the liver is the great storehouse of the body. The substance in liver which helps blood building is not formed in the liver but in the walls of the stomach and is brought to the liver for storage and sent out to the bone marrow day by day and hour
by hour as needed.

Likewise with vitamin D. We all form vitamin D in the skin by the action of sunlight and it is carried to the liver for storage.
It is not formed there, but carried there from the place of formation and sent out as needed.

I have by no means exhausted the list of substances that we know about which are stored in the liver and are necessary for health, and there must be many more waiting to be discovered. None of those known are destroyed by cooking.
So teach your children to eat liver once a week.

Questions and Answers
W. H. T.: Please give a treatment for relief of bunions.
Answer: Hallux valgus, or bunion, is a deformity of the foot at the angulation of the great toe. Pointed shoes or otherwise badly fitting shoes plus a fundamental weakness of the foot are the causes. It progresses to many degrees of severity, each stage requiring different treatment. In mild cases orthopedic shoes properly fitted give great relief.

To Search for History

That a final effort would be made to uncover more Garrett County Indian history in the vicinity of Selbyport and Friendsville, before that country is covered with water as result of the flood-control program on the tributaries of the Ohio river, was learned this week from Eugene Closser, Baltimore, who is representing the Maryland Academy of Science.

Closser came here after Charles E. Hoye, of Sang Run, president of the Garrett County Historical society, had sent a plea to the Academy to take some action now before the opportunity was lost forever. The Federal government is at work now in completing a dam on the Youghiogheny river which will flood much territory in Garrett county and a portion of Pennsylvania.

Closser said that there appeared to be more than sufficient evidence of established Indian villages at one time in that area, especially around Buffalo Creek where it empties into the Youghiogheny river. It has always been believed, according to Closser, that although this area was known to the Indians as an ideal hunting ground, that there were no permanent settlements or villages here.

Billy Sanders Improving

The condition of Billy Sanders, three-years-old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Sanders, Liberty street, who was seriously injured last Sunday evening when struck by an automobile, is reported as improving.

The youth suffered a broken right leg above the knee, received a deep gash in his forehead, several dislocated ribs and multiple cuts and bruises. He was carried into Guy Thayer's house where medical attention was given, after which he was taken to St. Mary's hospital, Clarksburg, W. Va., where he is now under the care of Dr. Haines. The car which struck the child was driven by Elwood Lee, of Swanton, officers said, and the accident occurred on Liberty street. Lee was headed west when the boy attempted to cross the street after playing in a sandpile, police said. Lee told them.

Sanders returned from Clarksburg yesterday but Mrs. Sanders is remaining there for several days with her son.

The accident was investigated by Officer John J. Sweeney, Sheriff Air Corps, July 7, has been transferred from Fort Meade, Md., to Camp Forrest, Tenn., according to word received by his parents.

Warned to be on the outlook for saboteurs, they were on their toes when a couple of men they deemed

Motion Picture Stars Will Take Part in 300 Bond Sale Rallies

September Drive Will Be Known as "Salute to Our Heroes" Month

Three hundred bond rallies in as many cities, with Hollywood motion picture stars appearing in person, will feature the nation's billion dollar war bond and stamp drive in September.

Fleeting O'Kelly, chairman of the theater division of the Allegany County War Bond Committee, said yesterday that the motion picture industry in all its branches will unite with the war savings staff of the Treasury department in the September drive. It will be known as "Salute to Our Heroes" month.

The motion picture industry, O'Kelly said, will provide impetus for the September bond drive just as the "Retailers for Victory" program acted as the spearhead of the July campaign.

Public Mass Meetings Motion picture stars will not appear at theaters but at public mass meetings and factories in the interest of the Treasury department's payroll savings plan. It will be the largest concentration of touring stars used so far in the war effort, O'Kelly said.

In order to get stars for personal appearances, each city must pledge at least $10,000 in bond sales on the day of their visit.

Another phase of the drive now being worked out by Treasury department officials, provides for many motion picture theaters to sell and deliver bonds to patrons. This will make it possible, O'Kelly explained, for working people who can not get to banks during working hours to purchase the war savings securities.

Theaters will advertise "Bonds While You Wait, Day and Night, Night and Day—Including Saturdays, Sundays and Holidays." The slogan will be "Bond a Bond to Honor Every Mother's Son in Service."

Rallies Are Planned Thousands of rallies are planned in cities, towns and villages to honor men in the service from every locality, O'Kelly said, with the sale of a bond to honor every man in service as the goal.

Henry Morgenthau, Jr., secretary of the treasury, expressed himself as pleased with the co-operation of the motion picture industry in the sale of war bonds and stamps.

"This September bond drive," Morgenthau said, "is a continuation of the patriotic and unselfish support which the industry as a whole, and its celebrities and stars individually, have consistently given, in a wide variety of ways to the nation's war program."

During the month of June, 15,000 motion picture theaters sold over $18,000,000 in war bonds and stamps, O'Kelly said.

Caroline County Refuses To Help Get Farm Labor Commissioners Will Not Pay for Transportation of Migrants

DENTON, Md., July 30 (AP)—Efforts to raise a fund of $10,000 to bring migrant workers from Florida to work at harvesting and canning the lower Eastern Shore tomato crop struck a snag when the Caroline county commissioners declined to contribute.

Gov. O'Connor recently agreed to provide $5,000 in state funds if the six counties of the lower eastern shore would furnish a like amount. Caroline county commissioners refused to vote its share of $850.

Raps Migrant Labor H. Roland Towers, Preston, member of the board of commissioners, said migrant labor had proved expensive in this county where the cost of two murder trials must be borne by the taxpayers because of their presence.

William H. Carey, Greensboro, another board member, termed the labor shortage "the canners' baby." He said the farmers would press their wives and daughters into service to see that the crop was harvested if the shortage became acute.

George W. Clendaniel, county agricultural agent, expressed the opinion the canners should be asked what contribution they will make. The cost of transportation should be deducted from workers' wages, he added.

Blackburn Alarmed Richard Blackburn, Ridgely, president of the Caroline County Farm Bureau, said that labor is going into defense plants, including many women formerly employed in canning factories. Some farmers, he added, are going to sell out.

Blackburn, who requested the commissioners to contribute to the fund, said that farmers may lose their tomatoes because of the labor shortage.

Large Crowd

"The Y. M. C. A. strives toward moral perfection. And to achieve this, it is the community's right, the community's privilege to criticize and offer suggestions."

Outlining a number of jobs which the Y. M. C. A. can and should be doing, the new secretary stated that there is a crying need for new members in the association. A new program and new members go hand in hand he said. Neither is possible without the other.

Offers Numerous Ideas

Among ideas he proposed are plans for a community health week, safety classes, handicraft for boys and girls, broader social and religious activities, an industrial program, daytime activities of interest to people who work at night, an active and energetic physical department and sports program, and several other projects all within the scope of the institution's program and facilities.

Johnson proposed another meeting in September or October when committees could get together and discuss each of these ideas as projects.

Roy W. Eves, chairman of the committee in charge of the dinner arrangements was toastmaster. He exhibited a triangle, emblem of the association, symbolic of unity, of spirit, mind and body, which the Y.M.C.A. program is intended to reach and develop.

Burke Urges Cooperation

Eves presented Edmund S. Burke who was chairman of the citizens committee and reorganization committee which raised funds and brought about the reorganization program of the institution. Burke said the committee was appreciative of the support of all who demonstrated their confidence in the institution and its possibilities in the future. The committees had raised funds and completed as far as possible the program of organization by finding a new secretary. Now there remains the task, he said, of rejuvenating the activities, revitalizing the program and increasing membership. This is possible only, he said, by community support and cooperation with the new executive.

John J. Robinson, president of the Y.M.C.A. board expressed his appreciation for the presence of so many interested citizens. He thanked the women's auxiliary for serving the dinner and paid tribute to officers and trustees including the Rev. Alfred L. Creager, first vice-president; Victor D. Helsey, second vice-president; James W. Bishop, treasurer; P. Allan Weatherholt, recording secretary; Edmund S. Burke, Harvey Weiss, W. Donald Smith, and Eugene Howell, trustees.

Compliments Auxiliary Mrs. George N. Philippi, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. was presented by the toastmaster. He complimented the women for the work they have done and said the auxiliary has again and again come to the rescue of the institution financially and in many other ways. Their organization was formed fifty-five years ago and now has 175 members. Eves also spoke in recognition of the former board and referred to a number of them personally.

Several songs were sung by the audience, led by A. Florian Wilson. The invocation and benediction were offered by the Rev. Hixon T. Bowersox.

Motor Vehicle Stalls on Tracks When Out of Gasoline

BALTIMORE, July 30 (AP)—One man was killed and at least eleven persons injured when a truck and a street car collided this afternoon.

The truck driver, identified as Charles Hughes, colored, of Baltimore, was killed when he was pinned in the cab of his overturned truck. The injured persons were all passengers on the street car and were reported to be mostly women and children.

Traffic was held up for about half an hour as firemen and emergency squads from the Baltimore Transit Company worked to free the body of the driver from the truck cab.

Witnesses said the truck, proceeding west, had run out of gas on the trolley tracks and that the driver and his assistant, Edward Saunders, tried to switch to a spare tank.

A motorcycle traffic patrolman arrived, the witnesses said, and told the men to get the truck off the tracks when the collision occurred. The truck was forced into a pole and overturned. The trolley was derailed.

Cargo Planes Up To FDR, Famous Builder Asserts

Henry J. Kaiser Says Construction Awaits President's Order

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP)—Henry J. Kaiser solemnly assured two Senate committees today that a signal from President Roosevelt would translate his vision of a fleet of giant cargo planes into a construction program such as only American ingenuity could initiate.

Given "the green light" and a steady flow of materials, the Oakland, Calif., shipbuilder told a Military Affairs subcommittee, he could turn out the first of such ships "within ten months after receiving plans."

Not only could his shipyards be converted in part of the production of planes to speed up war deliveries, Kaiser declared, but the conversion would not interfere with his shipbuilding contracts and Bethlehem and United States Steel Corporation and other shipbuilders would

America's Medical Skill Mobilized To Provide Best Possible Care For Soldiers Wounded in Battle

Even emergency operations can be performed at first aid station mile behind lines.

Ten minutes after being wounded, soldier has wounds dressed at divisional collecting station.

By ANDREW R. BOONE
 Central Press Writer

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 30 — Aviation may provide a combination of protection and striking power that will win the war, yet the death-spiriting pursuits and bombers can't do the job alone.

Manpower will take and hold the ground. And Uncle Sam possesses the world's best medical service, a service designed to keep that manpower in good health, and minister to them the instant they fall in battle or become ill from disease germs.

The doctors are very much on the alert. Their plans for caring for the gassed and wounded are predicated upon these facts:

Of every 10 soldiers hit by enemy shells and bullets, two will die in the front lines; four will require litters for quick transport to safety, and four, only slightly wounded, will walk to the rear.

Well, that's quite a problem, especially when the going gets heavy and thousands may fall in a single day. A gigantic job falling upon the shoulders of medical officers and enlisted men skilled in rendering first aid.

First Aid
 If Johnny Doughboy is hit, he'll get help within a few seconds. Two first aid men advancing with his company will see to that. Each carries bandages, iodine, opiates. With them he alleviates the soldier's pain, stops serious hemorrhages and rushes on to help the next man.

The battle swirls on, but the medical men lose no time getting the wounded to the rear; for upon quick ministrations may depend both their lives, and their speedy return to a fighting unit.

Where you to catch a glimpse of their operations, very likely you would see something like this:

A wounded man falls into a shell hole. One company first aid man rushes to help him. Shortly, litter bearers come up, place him on a stretcher, carry him back to the battalion first aid station, some half-mile distant. Here, calmly, yet swiftly, two doctors and a half-dozen enlisted assistants are prepared with anesthetics and an ample supply of surgical instruments to perform any emergency surgery, from clamping an artery to performing a delicate tracheotomy.

Mile behind Lines

Perhaps half an hour passes, when, temporarily bandaged, the wounded man moves on to the divisional collecting station. This outfit may be hidden from aerial view in the comparative safety of a woods, a mile or more behind the lines.

Opiates are administered, bandages tightened, medication supplied. But he doesn't tarry long here, provided he can be moved. On he goes, now to the clearing station, a mobile and tented hospital several miles distant. He may remain here a week or so, when he will be returned to duty; or, following rest and treatment, the wounded soldier will be transferred to an evacuation hospital farther in the rear... safe from all attack save aerial bombardment.

No matter where he goes, that American soldier will get the best medical and surgical service the nation affords. Doctors and surgeons by the thousands are being called up this summer. Civilians may suffer for lack of medical attention, but not the soldiers.

Sprung from Civil War

Both military and medical men say that the United States Army's medical system is the best yet devised for any army. It stems from the ideas of Surgeon General Jonathan Letterman, for whom Letterman General Hospital at the Presidio of San Francisco was named. It started during our own Civil War, and has been copied by all the armies in the world.

Primary purpose, of course, aside from our desire to alleviate pain and prevent death, is to keep fighting men fighting. American generals never wantonly waste the lives under their command. Yet, coldly, they know they must keep up their fighting strength. The medical corps is their tool to this end.

Saving the wounded soldier is only one of their functions. The doctors are charged with keeping camps healthful; preventing disease, both individual and epidemic; keeping water pure and sweet, and making sure the boys get plenty of food of the right kind. They keep the Army fit to fight.

Too Much Walking In This Romance

CHICAGO, July 30 (AP) — Mrs. Flavia White walked into superior court here and told this story of her courtship and marriage:

She met David White while they were competing in a walkathon. They were married before the walkathon audience. And twenty-four hours later, he walked out of her life.

Judge Charles A. Williams awarded her a divorce on desertion grounds and she walked out of court a free woman.

TODAY'S VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY

OLD FAVORITES REVIVED

Recently there has been a renewal of interest in the herb favorites of grandmother's day, in the herbs for flavor and fragrance and especially in the scented geraniums.

There are many fragrant-leaved geraniums, with attractive flowers and foliage, which can be planted into the garden or used in pots in the window box or terrace.

ROSE GERANIUM

NUTMEG GERANIUM

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, the rose geranium is perhaps the most popular of the scented geraniums. A leaf laid in the bottom of a glass of apple jelly adds a pleasant spicy flavor. It can be used as a garnish or to add fragrance to bouquets. Leaves, bruised, are also used to flavor puddings, custards and jellies.

The nutmeg geranium, also illustrated, is another favorite, having gray-green, velvety leaves. Some of the other sweet-scented geraniums are the lemon-scented, mint-scented, peppermint-scented, almond-scented, strawberry-scented, coconut-scented, filbert-scented and orange-scented. Pieces of lemon or mint geraniums are frequently used in the linen drawer.

These fragrant-leaved geraniums are easily increased from cuttings.

Pennsylvania School Ma'm Is Only Woman Test Pilot

ARMY CHECK. Major C. R. Borland, of the U. S. Army Inspection Service, helps Test Pilot Alma Hefflin adjust her parachute before starting a test flight.

By JACK SMITH

LOCK HAVEN, Pa. (AP) — A little girl stood in a cornfield near Spokane, Wash., twenty years ago and watched an airplane make a forced landing near her.

"Wow!" she said breathless. "I wanna fly too."

Alma Hefflin got her wish. Today she's the nation's only woman test pilot.

The soft-spoken, mild-mannered former school ma'm decides whether planes turned out by the Piper Aircraft Corporation are okay for Uncle Sam's fighting men.

Every day she puts factory-fresh Piper Cubs through a stiff test at the Lock Haven airport—and when they've proved themselves the Army Air Corps lets its seasoned pilots fly them.

"But it isn't quite what you think," she debunks. "There's a movie version of test piloting and a real-life version. There are no nine G's for me, for example. The really hard-boiled tests are made before the model is approved, not on every individual ship."

Yet this slim, trim brunette spins dives and idles planes while making testing observations.

After a hard day in the air she likes to knit, cook and write magazine articles on aviation. Her new book, "Adventure Was the Compass," has just been published.

One of her pet hopes is to see the organization of a women's division of the coastal Air Patrol. She's constantly writing Congressmen and Army and Navy chiefs that the country's 3,000 women pilots are "begging for war duty" and could easily help to spot submarines in coastal waters.

Miss Hefflin began her career in aviation in 1937. She threw up a job teaching in a Spokane grammar school and became a student herself—in an aviation school at Dallas, Tex.

"I spent nine months brushing up on things I'd learned when flying was my hobby," she said.

"Then I decided to open an aviation school of my own. I came here to buy a plane—and stayed. They offered me a job as an apprentice mechanic and I took it.

That was five years ago. Since then Miss Hefflin has taken a crack at practically every production job in the factory, as a learner. At the cost of grease-ruined manicures, spoiled hair-dos and countless facials she found out exactly what makes a Piper Cub tick. Her test piloting assignment came the day America declared war.

It's great fun," she said, "and it keeps me flying, which is what I've wanted since the idea first came to me when the ship put down in that pasture."

Plus: "SEA RAIDERS" Chapter No. 11

PLAY ROMANTIC ROLES

Robert Stack and Anne Gwynne have the principal romantic roles in Universal's absorbing action drama, "Men of Texas," now showing at the Liberty.

STANWYCK PLAYS FIERY FIONA

Gig Young is cast as one person who is not awed by fiery Fiona (Barbara Stanwyck's role). He plays the role of Nancy Coleman's sweetheart in Warner Bros.' "The Gay Sisters," which opens tomorrow at the Strand theater.

FACE PERILOUS DANGER

Mack Swain, as Big Jim, and Charlie Chaplin, as the Lone Prospector, face perilous danger when their Klondike cabin teeters on a cliff in "The Gold Rush," Chaplin's brilliant comedy starting tomorrow at the Maryland.

Theaters Today

Slapstick Is Feature Of "Gold Rush" Film

It is quite some time now since the long-haired boys and the short-haired girls have made cuts out of anything and everything generally regarded as profane. It is a long time, for instance, since they first foisted their cultism on the innocent head of Charlie Chaplin. Their defeat on this score didn't occur a moment too soon, for they were attempting to take Charlie away from the people and making him their sole property. What finally licked them was their own belated recognition of the fact that Charlie Chaplin was funny not because of any abstruse intellectual qualities, but merely because he was very funny!

This was a conclusion at which the common man had arrived many years before. The whole story is: people laugh at Chaplin because he is funny. For even though humor has been defined in various ways by various highbrows, humor still remains something at which people laugh. The people will laugh at Charlie Chaplin, when they see "The Gold Rush," coming tomorrow to the Maryland theater.

Young Actress Slated For Top

Fay McKenzie is just twenty-one years old, in spite of her twenty years' acting experience! The glamorous brunette beauty, who plays opposite Gene Autry in "Heart of the Rio Grande," currently appearing at the Embassy theater, has been acting ever since she can remember, and even then some.

She made her motion picture debut playing the infant daughter of Gloria Swanson in an early melodrama. She was just ten weeks old at the time, but she displayed such poise and acting finesse that she was signed for the role of a very, very young lady in the Oliver Hardy comedies.

Fay comes from a long, proud line of actors. Her parents were both in stock, and Fay spent her early childhood—when she wasn't working in pictures—barnstorming up and down the coast with them in their various productions.

Jackie Cooper Reveals Skill

Jackie Cooper is a fortunate young fellow who combines business and pleasure by working his hobbies in to his job.

Cooper has a number of absorbing side interests in addition to his central activity of being a screen star. He likes to tap dance and trap drum. He is fond of riding horses and of shooting guns. All these supplement his acting, nowadays.

He made profitable use of them in "Lone Cowboy" and "The Return of Frank James," and again in Universal's new action thriller, "Men of Texas," now at the Liberty theater. Robert Stack, Brod Crawford, Anne Gwynne, Ralph Bellamy, Jane Darwell and Leo Carrillo, also are starred in this drama of the Southwest.

Geraldine Fitzgerald Has Vixen Role

Geraldine Fitzgerald, that nice girl, has turned mean. It's a thing that often happens in Hollywood and it's an experience that no actress with first-rate intentions wants to miss.

There is considerable evidence that actresses can become great stars without playing vixen roles.

but none of the young women currently performing believes this. They cite you Bette Davis and Barbara Stanwyck, and say that's that. And if that isn't that, they say look at Ida Lupino. Now, of course, they are pointing to Fitzgerald. She is mean and mean a-plenty in her new picture, a show produced at Warner Bros. called "The Gay Sisters," which opens at the Strand tomorrow.

Geraldine is frankly delighted with herself. For the first time in her career she is permitted to say nasty things to people. Since the script is an able piece of writing, the nasty things she says have edge and rhetoric that she especially relishes, being Irish. She is—in the picture—an unscrupulous person, wealthy, conceited and good-looking.

Brooklyn Crushes Chicago Cubs 9 to 2

Blast Six Runs Across Plate In Fifth Frame

Allen Receives Credit for Tenth Win Although Macon Finishes

BROOKLYN, July 30 (AP)—Blasted across six runs on seven hits in the fifth inning, the Brooklyn Dodgers crushed the Chicago Cubs, 9 to 2, tonight and increased their National League lead to 8½ games over the idle St. Louis Cardinals.

Until the big blowoff, the Dodgers' only hit off Lefty Vern Olsen had been a single in the fourth inning, while the Cubs had taken a two-run lead with one run on a single by Olsen in the fourth and Lou Novikoff's sixth homer in the fifth.

But there was no questioning the authority of the champs when they came to bat in their half of the fifth.

Arky Vaughan and Mickey Owen singled and Frenchy Bordagaray scored a pinch double into left to score both and tie the game.

Pee Wee Reese sacrificed and Billy Herman bounced a single off Olsen's bare hand for another run.

Then Pete Reiser and Joe Medwick also singled, Herman scoring, and Olsen gave way to Lon Warneke.

Each of the Dodgers had hit the first pitch.

Warneke made the Dodgers look like wares over, but didn't stop their scoring.

The rally in the fifth gave credit to Johnny Allen for his tenth victory, although he gave the Cubs all their runs and was removed for a pinch hitter, Rookie Max Macon pitched three-hit shutout ball for the last four frames.

All-Army Grid Team Will Play Brooklyn At Baltimore Stadium

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP)—The War Department said today that the September 16 night football game between the Eastern All-Army team and the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National Professional League had been transferred from Jersey City to the Baltimore Municipal Stadium.

The transfer was made because of a possible conflict in dates with playoff games of the International Baseball League. Arrangements were completed today between the Baltimore park commissioners and War Department officials.

Proceeds will go to Army Emergency Relief. Brigadier General Frank A. Hancock, director of the Baltimore Stadium, announced his organization would enlist the support of civic and other organizations to fill the stadium.

Facing the Snipers

Barring some form of modern miracle the esteemed Dodgers will face the Yankees again in the next world series, and when this happens Dodger bats are slated for several shots of pitching poison. This goes equally for the Cardinals.

The Yankees are no longer the Bombers they used to be. The days of Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Bob Meusel and other members of Murderer's Row are gone. The Yankees still have Joe DiMaggio, Joe Gordon, Charley Keller, and Bill Dickey, but Tommy Henrich may be missing. They can still get their share of runs.

But the main trouble the Dodgers will have to handle is from the defensive—not offensive—side. Including Spud Chandler, Red Ruffing, Hank Borowy and Tiny Bonham. And these are not the only ones who know how to put the silence on hostile bats.

Breaking Through

The Dodgers can't overlook Gordon, DiMaggio, Keller, Dickey and others from the attacking side. But they will spend no pleasant hours trying to crash through the four Yankee pitchers named above, with the help they can draw from Allyn Donald, Lefty Gomez, Lefty Owens, Maris Russo, and one of two more.

This is about the toughest pitching staff in either league. It had the Yankees out in front with DiMaggio, Keller and Henrich battling around 250 or under—with Rizzuto over 60 points below his 1941 mark. They kept the Yankees well out in front with an uncertain infield.

First it was Bonham. Then it was Chandler. Then it was Borowy who came along to help as Ruffing kept the even tenor of his ancient way.

The Case of Chandler

The Yankees are a peculiar ball club. When something happens in one department on the morbid side, another department moves in and up. When their hitting falls off, their pitching steps in.

Take the case of Spurgeon

Chandler, born 33 years ago in Carnesville, Ga. Ever since Spud helped Georgia beat Yale three years in a row, things began happening to him on the cloudy side—a torn ligament, a broken ankle, one thing and another.

In 1939 Spud won only three games for the Yankees. "Something always is happening to these ex-football players," Joe McCarthy growled. In 1940 Spud won eight and lost seven, a spotty record with the Yankees on his side.

Then the Georgian lost his first four games in 1941. Just as his pals were beginning to mourn, Chandler suddenly wheeled and won his next 10 straight. He has won now 22 of his last 24 starts and if there's a better pitcher in baseball this season I can't recall the name.

Bad Advance News

We have no intention here of breaking any sad August news for Larry McPhail, Leo Durocher, the Dodgers and the gallant citadel of Brooklyn, baseball's stoutest stronghold. But Messrs. Gordon, Ruffing, Borowy, and Bonham are still not the entire Yankee team.

We have referred to the fact that the Yankees of 1942 are not the blasting Bombers of other years when the Babe and Gehrig were running above 90 bombs a year together. But there is still a large batch of lurking danger in the ash can that DiMaggio, Gordon and Keller carry to the plate, not overlooking Dickey or Red Rolfe. Or Tommy Henrich, if he is still on the reservation, with the call of the bugle in his ears.

There will be a number of shrill, plaintive, birdlike cries from Brooklyn's loyal set of throats over this suggestion of Yankee strength. This doesn't mean that the series is over, and that the Yankees have already put the big cleanup across.

It would be a much better series if extended further to help raise war funds that will be more badly needed than many know about today. Those who are not on the firing line, nor headed that way, can afford to go all out for those in a much tougher game.

Ex-Big Leaguer Elected Judge

Clarence "Big Boy" Kraft Compiled Good Record in 20 Years

PORT WORTH, Tex., July 30 (AP)—Clarence (Big Boy) Kraft, whose baseball records fill a book, is just as tough along the Texas political trail as he was on the diamond.

Kraft quit baseball eighteen years ago after nearly twenty years in the game, including several hitches in the majors. He had just finished a Texas League string of clouting records unequalled to this day. One of them was fifty-five home runs in a season.

Now he's county judge of Tarrant County, a $7,400 job won over two opponents with a majority in the first primary.

To do it he worked just as hard as he did in baseball. Personally he met and handed out cards to 35,000 persons.

"All business," was the way President J. Alvin Gardner of the Texas League described Kraft. "He kept the old Port Worth Cats hustling. The players were afraid to face him if they let down."

Port Worth won five pennants in the six years Kraft played first class and tied for the other. The Cats also took the Dixie Series four times.

The late Paul Le Gave, a guiding light of the Cats in their great victory surge, used to keep extra lockers handy to replace those Kraft tore up with a bat to emphasize his feelings over games lost.

Kraft quit in 1924 and began selling automobiles. He made a success until the war froze his business. Then Kraft jumped into politics with both feet.

Whirly To Head For Saratoga

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 30 (AP)—Jimmy Jones, who is here with all the Calumet Farm horses except Whirlaway, reports that his dad, Plain Ben, will head this way after Whirly's engagement in the Arlington Handicap. Whirlaway has been named for half a dozen stakes and will be shipped to Saratoga early next week.

Laabs Expects To Resume Slugging

Browns' Outfielder Hit Seven Homers in Eight Games during Streak

ST. LOUIS, July 30 (AP)—The hottest slugging streak in baseball this year apparently has ended but Chester Peter Laabs confidently expects to break out in another orgy of home runs any day now.

For a sensational string of eight games, the Browns' outfielder hit seven homers, drove in twenty-four tallies and batted .552. Since then he has hit two more, giving him a total of nineteen, second only to Ted Williams in the American League.

"Nobody could keep up the kind of pace he was setting," said Manager Luke Sewell today, "but he's meeting the ball squarely and he might break out in another streak any time."

However, the fickle home fans have been yelling "home run" whenever Chet steps up to the plate, and a single has been sort of a letdown. The crowds have almost got to the point where it's a home run or no count when Laabs bats.

Far from losing confidence when he fails to deliver, Laabs has maintained faith in his new-found ability, Sewell said. In fact, the whole Browns' squad has confidence in the stocky outfielder, who has been the most important single factor in the team's drive to the first division.

Manush Shows Age On Back

GREENSBORO, N. C., July 30 (AP)—Baseball players show age in arms, legs and faces, but Heinie Manush, former major league now managing the Greensboro Red Sox, shows his on his back.

His number corresponds to his age—this year 41, last year 40, the previous season, 39.

Tigers and A's Split Twin Bill

DETROIT, July 30 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers staged a six-run eighth inning rally to defeat the Philadelphia Athletics, 11 to 5, in the opener of a double-header today, but the Macks took the nightcap, 7 to 6, on light relief pitching by Roger Wolff. Detroit clinched the series, however, two games to one, its first in a month.

Pinky Higgins, returning to the lineup after a day on the bench, drove home six Detroit runs in the opener, climaxing the big eighth with a four-run homer off Luman Harris, who was charged with his ninth setback against ten victories.

In the nightcap the A's spotted Phil Marchildon, their leading pitcher, a four-run lead but he suddenly lost his stuff in the fourth as Detroit clustered five runs on five hits including Birdie Tebbetts' first homer of the season with one on.

The Lacy Delicats defeated the North End Social and Athletic club yesterday on the Taylor field by a 11 to 5 score. The league-leaders had their big innings in the fifth when they rang the bell seven times.

In the first frame Hawse slammed a homer for the winners and his feat was duplicated in the fifth by Abe Wright, who hurled them plate-ward for the Lacy crew also donated two hits toward the victory. W. Orndorff had two doubles in three tries for the winners, while Miller had two hits in three times at bat.

Spangler and Jim Rice collected two hits apiece in three times at the plate. Morgan and Boyle divided the backstopping for Lacy's while Barnard hurled to Skidmore for the NES A outfit.

Sad and sudden was the call,
Of one so dearly loved by all,
A bitter grief, a shock severe,
It was to part with one so dear.

We often sit and think of you,
And speak of how you died,
To think you could not say good-bye,
Before you closed your eyes.

For all of us you did your best,
Oh, God grant you Eternal Rest.

Earlier Squirrel Season in Three Counties To Open On September 15

State Game-Fish Commission Passes Six New Regulations at Meeting in Baltimore

Adoption of an earlier squirrel season for Allegany, Washington and Garrett counties, the establishment of a state-wide license of $1 a day for tourist anglers, the prohibition of nets, seines or traps of any description in waters designated as trout waters and stricter regulations relative to the possession of illegal deer was announced yesterday at the annual meeting of the State Game and Inland Fish Commission in Baltimore.

The commission, of which Fulcher P. Smith, of Cumberland, is a member, passed six regulations which will become law immediately, submitted three recommendations to the Maryland Legislative Council for action at the next session of the state legislature and adopted four new policies at the session in the Munsey building which commenced at 9 a. m., and was concluded at 4 p. m.

The regulations adopted by the commission and become effective immediately include:

1. Use of nets, seines or traps of any description cannot be used in waters designated as trout waters.
2. Making unlawful the possession of illegal deer, part or parts thereof, either dead or alive.

- (a) Making it unlawful to remove the head or any part of the deer before being checked by a game warden.
- (b) Making possession of each illegal deer, part or parts thereof, each a separate offense.

3. Making it illegal to use more than two hooks either on one of two lines. Anglers shall have the choice of one hook on each line or two hooks on one line. This does not apply to artificial lure or plugs.
4. Adoption of an earlier squirrel season for Allegany, Washington and Garrett counties from September 15 to 30, inclusive. Present bag limits and other regulations will remain the same. Allowance of squirrels to be also taken during the small game season in the three counties, November 1 to 30.
5. Establishment of a state-wide tourist license for anglers at $1 a day.
6. Setting of the creel limit at ten a day for shad, rock and salmon taken from the Susquehanna river. No limit was specified in the past.

Recommended to Council
The three recommendations approved by the commission to be submitted to the legislative council are:

1. That power given game wardens to search cars be extended to include all kinds of vehicles. The present law designates automobiles only.
2. That fishing fines imposed under Sections 80 to 83, inclusive, be reduced from the present maximum of $100 and minimum of $25 to $50 and $10, respectively. The commission agreed that the penalties under the present law are too heavy.
3. Urged the adoption of a regulation to allow only one dip net at a time for an individual.

Model Dog Law Sought
Among the new policies adopted by the commission were:

1. To furnish elementary schools of the state a series of pamphlets as an educational feature on wild life and conservation.
2. Distribution of all game and fish through deputy game wardens, thereby abolishing shipments to groups and individuals.
3. Expanding more effort on the trapping and transfer of rabbits in the urban areas of the state.
4. Approval of help to Allegany and Garrett counties in drawing up a model dog law with enforcement of the law to be carried on by game wardens. Under present conditions when a dog is caught pursuing game it's up to the warden to find the owner. Few persons will admit to ownership and nothing can be done about it. If the owner admits he can be fined $5.

Large Crowd Welcomes New Y.M.C.A. General Secretary at Dinner Here

Everett R. Johnson Tells Citizens Institution Needs Memberships

"The Y. M. C. A. is the training ground of democracy," Everett R. Johnson, new general secretary of Central Young Men's Christian Association, told an audience of nearly 150 interested people last night, at a dinner given in his honor in the Y. gymnasium.

At the invitation of the new board of directors of the institution, more people than have assembled for a Y. M. C. A. activity for many months, attended the dinner to hear about plans for the future and to greet the new executive.

Johnson, who came here from Jersey City, N. J., told his audience that he appreciates the tasks that

Motor Club Will Honor Rockwell

Dinner and Dance Planned; Resignation Is Effective Aug. 15

A testimonial dinner and dance in honor of F. Harry Rockwell, who has resigned as president and manager of the Western Maryland Motor Club, an affiliate of the American Automobile Association, will be held Tuesday, August 11 at the All-Ghan Shrine Country Club, Baltimore pike.

The dinner is scheduled to start at 7:30 p. m., and Marty Flynn's Society Ramblers will play for the dancing, commencing at 9 p. m.

The resignation of Rockwell, who has served as managing president of the club for three years, will be held Friday, August 7 at 7:30 p. m., at the headquarters of the Western Maryland Motor Club, 229 Baltimore avenue, at which time directors will elect Rockwell's successor.

Directors, club members and their wives are invited to attend the dinner and dance. Between seventy-five and one hundred persons are expected to attend. The committee on arrangements comprises William S. Tower, A. G. McElfish, Albert H. Macy and Mrs. Marian Streett.

Ambulance and Firemen Answer False Alarms

Local Taxicab Company Also Reports Receiving False Calls Recently

An ambulance and city fire equipment were summoned on a false alarm last night for the second time within three weeks.

Firemen from East Side fire station and the Kight ambulance responded at 7:30 p. m. to a call to 1200 Holland street at the foot of Wills mountain in North Cumberland.

When firemen arrived at the scene they found no trace of fire and residents there told them they had not sent for the fire department.

The Kight funeral home said its ambulance also was dispatched to 1200 Holland street in response to a call but found no trace of an accident or injured persons.

Three weeks ago, shortly after midnight, three ambulances, East Side Fire Department, a wrecking truck from a local garage and several taxicabs were summoned to the 200 block of Williams street. They arrived at the scene only to discover that the calls were false.

A local taxicab company said last night they had received false calls for cabs on several occasions in the vicinity of Gephart drive and Williams street but said last night they had not been called to Holland street.

No one as yet has been able to give an explanation for the calls and police said investigation is made difficult because the calls can be made from a party telephone line or from a pay station.

Someone suggested, however, that the caller may be a petty saboteur trying to wear out tires and burn up gasoline.

Has Specific Task
"The Y. M. C. A. in any community has a very definite task," he said. "This task is broad in a sense, but is still definite, and unless the institution and those interested in it realize what this job is, it cannot be done. The Y. M. C. A.," he continued, "must meet the needs of the people in its community—whatever they might be—and it is the job of the Y. M. C. A. to discover what these needs are, rather than wait until the community comes knocking at the door telling the institution about its needs."

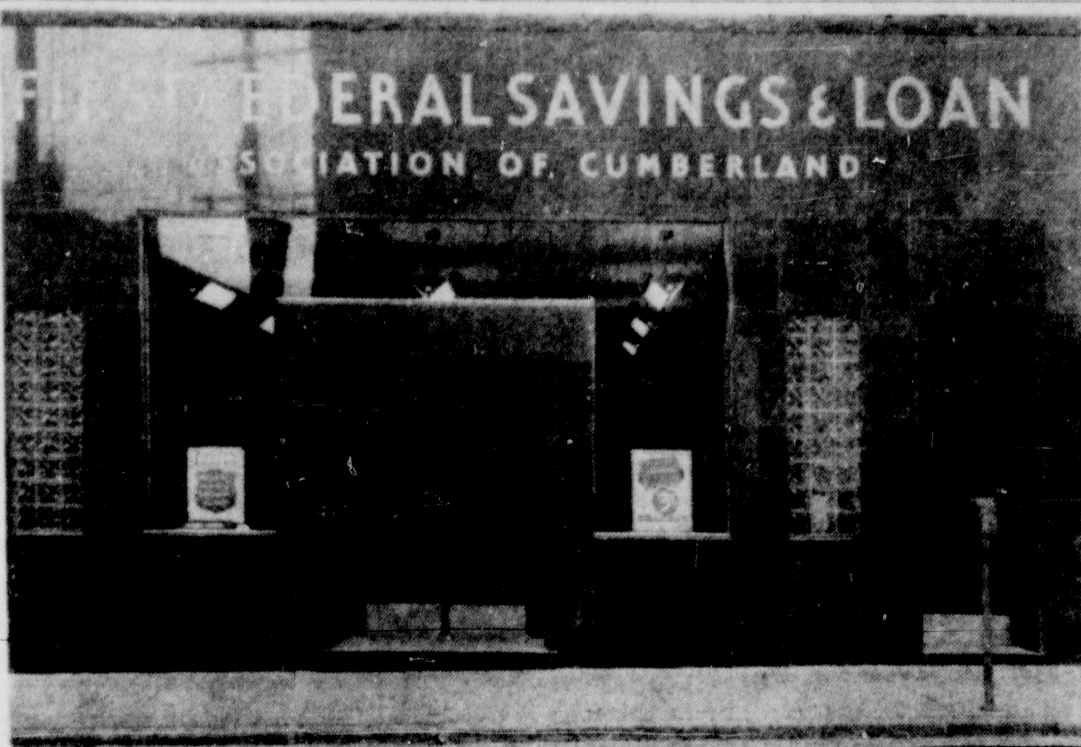

"Often called a character building institution," Johnson stated, "the Y. M. C. A. is a place where the community can find a place to belong."

Town of Carlos Seeks To Retain School Building

Court Action Taken To Keep Property in Use as Community Center

Court action has been started by citizens of Carlos, this county, to retain the use of the former public school building as a community center and emergency air raid station.

A bill of complaint was filed against the Board of Education of Allegany county. The Borden Mining company and James H. Morgan, by William Drew, Joseph Kenney, Daniel Middleton, Floyd Winebrenner, Melvin Wade, James Middleton and William Morgan, an executive committee representing the citizens and residents of Carlos.

According to the bill, residents and citizens agreed to send their children to school at Beall high school Frostburg, provided the old school building at Carlos would be leased to the town by the board of education, to be used as a community center. The bill charges the board of education failed to carry out its part of the agreement and agreed to return the property to the Borden Mining company on July 1, 1942. The property had been leased from the mining company since February 18, 1890.

It is further claimed that the citizens of Carlos, on the strength of the verbal understanding with the school board, went to considerable expense to equip the building as a community center and emergency station for air raids and other incidents. It is further charged that James H. Morgan entered the property and removed certain fixtures.

The plaintiffs charge there is no other building in the town which can be used as a community center and they petition the court to issue a decree that the board of education carry out their verbal agreement to lease the property to the citizens of the community. The bill states the verbal agreement was for a lease of five years, beginning July 1, 1941.

R. Duke Ayndt and Harold E. Naughton are attorneys for the citizens group.

George Schellhouse Dies
George Schellhouse, 66, Franklin W. Va., died at 9:50 o'clock last night in Memorial hospital. He was admitted for treatment July 25.

Gunter Declines GOP Candidacy for Attorney-General

Former State Senator Notifies Republican Leaders of His Decision

Former State Senator William A. Gunter, prominent Cumberland attorney, who was offered the GOP nomination for attorney-general of Maryland by a state-wide committee of Republicans, has decided to decline the candidacy.

Interviewed at his office on Washington street yesterday afternoon, Gunter said he had considered the matter of his candidacy carefully, and feels that the offer of Maryland Republicans is a distinct honor. However, due to the advice of his personal physician, Gunter has decided to decline the offer and will not be a candidate.

He stated that a campaign of this kind is one that requires a great deal of travel and any candidate must necessarily undergo a rigorous schedule. Senator Gunter said this is the only reason that he will not be a candidate, and regrets very much that his physical condition will keep him from taking an active and energetic part in the state contest.

Senator Gunter added that he has already notified state Republican party leaders of his decision, and expressed his gratitude for the consideration he has been shown.

Local Delegate To Attend 2-Day WPB Conference

Ultimate Use of Raw Materials Will Be Discussed at New York Meeting

A representative of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce will attend a two day training conference in New York city, August 11 and 12 to study a new classification system set up by the War Production Board.

Harold W. Smith, executive secretary of the chamber, said yesterday. Nelson Requests Representative Smith said, John D. Liebau, president of the chamber, received a telegram Wednesday from Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, requesting that a representative of the chamber of commerce attend the conference.

One of the principal matters to be discussed, according to the telegram is the new classification system to determine the ultimate use of raw materials.

Nelson said in his telegram the classification system was set up in order to facilitate the operation of priorities. It is essential, he said, if we are to accomplish our aims, that this regulation "apply to all businesses except retailers and that they comply with this order without delay."

The conference was called, Nelson said, to "insure uniformity in the understanding of and compliance with this regulation."

Set-up Will Be Considered
During the first day of the conference, subjects to be discussed include the new organizations set-up of WPB, appeal procedure set up to handle appeals from "M" and "L" orders which control the sale of equipment, compliance with regulations, the classification system for tracing end use and the production requirements plan.

On the second day, industry and commodity group clinics will be held.

Powerful Midget Motor Is Shown Here by Inventor

Vast Claims Are Made for Device by Designer C. H. Vlachos

Would you like to see the United States in possession of a machine that could leave America in the morning, bomb Hitler at breakfast, slap Mussolini a few minutes later, then whisk your way around the globe to blast Hirohito at lunch time and be back home in time for an early dinner?

Well, wiry, persistent Constantinos H. Vlachos, a small Greek-American, claims he has such an invention that could smash the Axis to smithereens overnight.

And everything is ready, Vlachos says, "if Uncle Sam woke up."

The motor, which operates on spontaneous combustion, can be produced in mass production at the rate of ten cents a piece. Ten thousand 50,000 horse power long range motors can be built for $30,000,000. Each motor would weigh 1,000 pounds and the speed of the "Triphibian," so named because it operates on land and water as well as in the air, would be 1,000 miles an hour.

Carrying under his arm a myriad of newspaper clippings and a motor wrapped in an old piece of brown paper, Vlachos walked into the News office last night, quietly laid his material on the desk of the editor, shook hands and launched into a voluble bit of oratory about his invention.

Vlachos said he is tired of the president's dilly-dallying, Congress's dilly-dallying and army and navy engineers' dilly-dallying. No one will pay much attention to the motor it took him twenty years to invent.

Now, the little Greek-American says, he's on his way to every newspaper office in the United States to put his invention before the public and get some backing "so we can get this war over with."

Morrison, WPB regional production manager at Dallas.

Information wanted on the material is owner's name, location of tank, price, name of original manufacturer, boiled or welded make. All property will be moved from its present location by the War Production Board.

Specifications on tanks needed follow: 2,000 tanks of 10,000 barrel capacity, one hundred 25,000 barrel tanks, one hundred 50,000 barrel tanks, twenty-five 3,000 barrel tanks, twenty-five 2,000 barrel tanks, twenty-five 1,000 barrel tanks, fifty 500 barrel tanks, fifty 100 barrel tanks and twenty-five ten barrel tanks.

Chatter Charter

It was a red letter day yesterday for Roland Leach, blind news stand operator in Allegany county court house. Roland, known by everyone who works in and around the court house and by all the members of the bar, reporters and others who daily visit the building, as a genial character and one with a kind word and friendly smile, started out to observe his thirty-third birthday anniversary in much the usual manner.

He came to work bright and early as usual, and went about his business, operating his little business. But yesterday afternoon he was pleasantly surprised when a committee of county workers made an official visit to his "little store" and presented him with $11.40 worth of war stamps, as a birthday gift.

During the day, it seems a collection was taken through the court house, with officials of trial magistrates court also participating, as well as a number of attorneys and others. Toward the close of the day, a couple dollars more had come in and was added to the gift. In addition to all that, Roland was taken to the home of a friend, Francis Roman, 218 Saratoga street last evening for a birthday dinner.

It was a bright day in the life of a congenial friend, and it's the opinion of Chatter that Roland's friends got about as much kick out of it as Roland did.

There's an old maxim somewhere about "spreading a little sunshine."

"We get little information from the London papers and that is our chief source," writes Lt. Col. Joseph P. Franklin from "Somewhere in England" to members of the staff of the local health department.

Newspapers are not as newsy as the Cumberland News or the Cumberland Evening Times.

"This morning's paper is quite filled with news of the debate in parliament. Seems that they are still confident that Mr. Churchill knows how to run the war from the huge majority vote that he was given yesterday."

"Had a nice visit to London last week and met some very fine people. Things of course are still in a more or less upset stage but gradually are becoming better organized. We are still more or less 'status quo' but as my friend 'Big a De Lou Riley' in Frostburg would say 'time wounds all heels'."

"Am still hoping that the flow of mail from the states will begin soon."

Friends of the former county and city health officer who desire to write may reach him by addressing mail to Lt. Col. Joseph P. Franklin, M. C. C. O. Sixteenth Station Hospital, A. P. O. 1067-30 Postmaster, New York, N. Y.

Chatter is in receipt of a welcome letter from Ensign William L. Wilson, Jr., who is stationed with the United States Navy at Miami, Fla.

Bill, a son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Wilson, 523 Washington street, writes that the biggest difference down in Florida from the "old home town" is that he believes they have more of a war spirit and feeling there than in Cumberland.

The blackouts in Cumberland look like children's play compared to the system in effect in Florida, Bill writes. He says he only wishes that some of Cumberland authorities could see how the military authorities take over a situation. There is one thing at least we have learned down here, if nothing else, that is: anything can be done at any time," he adds.

Treiber Would Impound All Cars Not Used for Business or Work

Calls Plan "Sure-fire" Method of Alleviating Tire, Gas Shortages

Impounding for thirty days all automobiles used for any purpose other than business or work was suggested yesterday by John J. Treiber, assistant chief of police as a "sure-fire" method of alleviating the shortage of tires and gasoline.

Treiber declared that if city and state police were given the authority to enforce such a measure "1,000 cars could be taken out of Cumberland within a week."

"Six out of every ten cars are used for joy riding purposes," the

75 Thoroughbreds Arrive at Fairgo For Race Meeting

Try Flying and Randle Queen Here; Stalls Available for 396

Seventy-five of the 396 stalls in the Cumberland fair grounds ball mile racing oval are now occupied by bangtails awaiting the opening of the fair association's ten-day meeting, August 4 to 8 and 11 to 15. Gil Haus, assistant to Edward J. Brennan, race secretary, announced yesterday after he had made a check-up following his arrival at the track.

Haus said that Brennan received approximately 700 applications for stalls from horsemen in various sections of the country but there will be accommodations for only 396 thoroughbreds.

Topnotchers Arrive
Heading the list of satellites already on the grounds are Try Flying, owned by Mrs. Arthur Bevan, of Columbus, Ohio, and trained by her husband, and Randle's Queen and Smart Lad, owned by Mrs. L. E. Crowell, and trained by William J. Hughes.

Randle's Queen, a five-year-old bay mare, by Espino out of Glorify, a full sister of Transfigure, now starring on the "big apple," comes to Fairgo with a record of finishing "in the money" nine times in ten starts this year. Five of her starts resulted in victories. Smart Lad's record for the year is two wins, two seconds and one fourth in five outings.

Horses Win Here
Mrs. Crowell pointed out that Randle's Queen won the Col. Robertson handicap at Fairgo last year and three years ago her Green Water won the Harvey Jewelry Company trophy, which was presented by Governor Herbert R. O'Connor. The owner produced several excellent photographs showing the triumphs of both Randle's Queen and Green Water at the local oval.

Try Flying, a classy handicap horse, was shipped to Fairgo from Charles Town, W. Va., where he won his last five starts following a win in his only start at the Hagerstown meeting. A son of Flying Heels, a Belmont Futurity winner, Try Flying's record since he went to the racing was includes eleven wins, two seconds and two thirds in twenty-three starts. Try Flying is paying his initial visit to Fairgo. He has won on tracks in Rhode Island, Ohio, West Virginia, Maryland and Arkansas.

From Running Family
"He comes from a running family," remarked Try Flying's trainer, who recalled that Flying Heels was out of Flying Ebony, winner of the Kentucky Derby seventeen years ago.

The bulk of the horses yet to be shipped here will come from the Bel Air meet which will be concluded tomorrow.

Local Navy Recruiter Needs Only Nine Men To Meet July Quota

The local navy recruiting officer's effort to enlist its quota of sixty-seven men for July will probably be successful because fifty-eight men have been accepted so far and eighteen more men have been sent to Baltimore for examinations.

Petrott Will Attend Convention Banquet

Adjutant General Francis Petrott yesterday accepted an invitation to attend the banquet of the Maryland Department American Legion convention Thursday, August 27, at 7 p. m., in the Queen City hotel.

The invitation was forwarded to Petrott by Wesley H. Abrams, chairman of convention's distinguished guests committee.

Treiber Would Impound All Cars Not Used for Business or Work

assistant chief said, and "thousands and thousands of gallons of gasoline are used for nothing."

If police were given the right to "clean up joy riders" and those unnecessarily using automobiles, Treiber asserted, the situation could be cleared up in a week's time.

Treiber predicted 200 automobiles could be impounded every night so "it wouldn't take long" to eliminate those which are being driven unnecessarily, burning up gasoline and wearing out tires.

If motorists are using their cars for business and work "it's an entirely different proposition," Treiber said.

Impound the cars of pleasure and joy riders for a month, the assistant chief said, as a punitive measure for unnecessary use of tires and gasoline and "I know my plan will work."
